WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—(AP)—For the first time in United States his-

Four Monroe citizens Saturday received commissions signed by Governor Sam Jones, assigning them to various state positions in Monroe and Baton Rouge.
Named to serve in Monroe were Sam Rubin, Floyd Martin and E. N.
Faulk, who were commissioned as members of the board of commissioners for the Louisiana Training Institute.
Richard Downes, Jr., was named as member of the purchasing department of the state highway commission in Baton Rouge.
All appointments are effective immediately.
The newly appointed L. T. I. board is expected to meet the early part of this week for the purpose of electing a chairman and other officers. Mr.
Downes is expected to report to his Baton Rouge headquarters the early part of the week also.
Mr. Downes stated that the Downes Brokers, Inc., will continue to operate as before in the same location under the directorship of Mrs. Richard Downes Jr., Mrs. Hazel White and Levy Gremillion.
Mr. Rubin is owner and manager of the R & A Jewelry Company, Mr.
Martin is employed at the Central Savings Bank and Trust Company, and recent municipal primary.

FOUR CHILDREN KILLED IN GRAVEL PIT CAVE-IN

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 14.—(AP)— Tons of falling earth trapped and suffocated four children in an abandoned gravel pit 10 miles west of

with his life.
The dead: Joe Winford Armstrong, 11; Dorothy May Armstrong, 9; Lurline Armstrong, 8, children of Mr. and Mrs. George Armstrong; Joe Hubert Trowell, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Isaac Rowell.
William Thomas Morrison, 10, a playmate aiding in the digging of a cave into the gravel pit's high bank, escaped with his life by running

GLADNEY BACKERS TO GATHER HERE; MILLS IN CAPITAL

Opening Gun In Second Primary To Be Fired At Meeting Today

The opening gun in the second primary campaign to select a congressman from the Fifth district will be fired today when supporters of E. L.
(Boots) Gladney, Bastrop attorney who finished second to Newt V. Mills, incumbent, in last Tuesday's first primary, will meet here to map plans for the race. The meeting will be held at 2:30 p.m. at the Frances Hotel roof.
The second primary will be held on October 15.
Gladney, former Louisiana commander of the American Legion, finished second in the six-man race.
Mills lacked approximately 3,000 votes of obtaining a majority over his five opponents.
"I most definitely plan to run it off," Gladney said Saturday. "I think Mr.
Mills is on the way out. It is time that individuals in this district have someone in Congress to represent them. I have been assured that a large majority of citizens backing candidates other than Mr. Mills in the first primary will vote for me on October 15.
I know I have a chance to win and I'm going to fight it out. My leaders and workers in the Fifth district will meet at 2:30 p.m. Sunday to discuss plans for my second campaign. I haven't decided yet when it will

Congressman Mills, who left Thursday night for Washington, telegraphed the following statement to The World:
"To my people in the Fifth Congressional district, I extend my appreciation and thanks for the honor shown and placed in me during the recent election and it is my aim to render you more constructive and efficient service as well as to my country in that the future posterity of this day may be handed greater and better for tomorrow."
Following passage of important defense legislation by Congress, it was believed probable that Mills will return here to wage an active campaign.
Meanwhile, his friends will carry on the campaign for him, it was said.
Other candidates in the order in which they finished in the first primary were: Truett L. Scarborough, Ruston, district attorney of Lincoln and Union parishes; Dr. D. E. Brown, Ferriday, state senator; D. Y. Smith,
Sterling, state senator; and Virgil Hancock, Columbia.
Latest official returns with six of the 253 precincts of the district missing showed the following vote: Mills, 18, 017; Gladney, 6,458; Scarborough, 5,823;
Brown, 4,568; Smith, 3,372, and Hancock 974.

Schools In Twin Cities, Ouachita Open Monday

Enrollment Expected To Be About Same As Last Year, Neville Says

The day which many youngsters look forward to and that which some dread, but in either case an eventful day, arrives Monday.
Tomorrow the children of Monroe, West Monroe and all of Ouachita parish will return to their books. Vacation days are over and study hours loom ahead.
This is the time of the year when comparative peace reigns in the average household and parents will only get a glimpse of their neighbor's children as they hustle to school.
Enrollment in the city and parish schools is expected to be approximately the same as last year with few variations. E. L. Neville, superintendent of city schools, and T. O. Brown, superintendent of parish schools, declared Saturday.
Teacher rolls of the various schools of the city and parish are practically the same as last year with few revisions.
In the city of Monroe the several schools are districted as follows:
Neville High school will be open to all high school students and seventh grade students throughout the city.
Georgia Tucker school will be open to students below the seventh grade residing north of Pine street. Students residing between Pine and Washington streets may attend either Georgia Tucker or Central Grammar school, it was announced.
The Central Grammar school will be open to all students residing between Washington and Ouachita avenue and who are below the seventh grade.
Students residing between Ouachita avenue and Morris avenue may attend either the Central Grammar school or Berkdull Faulk.
The Berkdull Faulk school is for students below the eighth grade who live between Morris avenue and Dixie street.

GUILD FIGHT AGAINST CONSCRIPTION PLAYED BY PRESIDENT'S WIFE

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Mrs.
Franklin D. Roosevelt today championed conscription against an attack by the American Newspaper Guild (CIO), of which she is a member.
Replying to a recent circular setting forth anti-conscription views of the Guild's international executive board,
Mrs. Roosevelt wrote in the Guild Reporter, union organ, that "to make sweeping statements seems to me stupid beyond words, and to use such claptrap as the young people in the American Youth Congress use seems to me even more stupid."
"You are quite right that more democracy, not less, is needed in this country, but more unselfish willingness to serve for the good of the people is what we really need—not a group of Democratic citizens who are always asking and never giving."
In an answering letter, Donald M.
Sullivan, Guild president, wrote, "I submit that the board's statement, drafted after hours of careful discussion, was accurate, particularly in the references to the anti-labor possibilities of the bill."
The board's letter said the Burke-Wadsworth bill contained "anti-labor and anti-Democratic features" and the "very existence of the emergency" was "believed by the failure of the government to require industry to forego excessive profits and to produce, and produce fast."

Europe 'Breakdown' Roosevelt's Fault, Willkie Declares

President One Of Principal Contributors, Republican Asserts

By William B. Ardery
EN ROUTE TO KANSAS CITY, Sept. 14.—(AP)—In a voice so hoarse that aides summoned throat specialists from Chicago and California, Wendell L. Willkie charged today that President Roosevelt "has been one of the principal contributors to the breakdown in Europe."
Speaking in Peoria, Ill., after a series of rear platform addresses had strained his voice, Willkie said huskily:
"Where was Franklin Roosevelt, this great, indispensable man, when Germany was reaching out? If he had given encouragement, this thing would never have happened."
"Franklin Roosevelt, instead of being one factor for the preservation of the democratic way, has been one of the principal factors in the destruction of the democratic way."
Although declaring that the president's motives "are always noble," the Republican presidential candidate said that "it doesn't do any good to have noble motives if you don't know what you're talking about."
Referring to a statement by Henry
A. Wallace, Democratic vice-presidential nominee, that the Republican party is the party of appeasement, Willkie said:
"Appeasement? He (Roosevelt) has appealed the democratic world to destruction. Of all the men I know who have any acquaintance with international affairs, Franklin Roosevelt is the least qualified to lead this nation."
Willkie asserted earlier in Joliet, Ill., that Mr. Roosevelt once "telephoned Hitler and Mussolini and urged them to sell Czechoslovakia down the river at Munich."
Lem Jones, Willkie's press secretary, told reporters later that the candidate had "misspoken" and that he had meant to say that Mr. Roosevelt telephoned Hitler and Mussolini and had urged "a settlement at Munich."
Jones added that Willkie had intended to add that the settlement reached at Munich had "sold Czechoslovakia down the river."
Willkie asked his audience whether Mr. Roosevelt had any "extraordinary skill" in foreign affairs and then continued:
"Instead of being unusually skilled in international affairs, Franklin Roosevelt has handled foreign affairs in the last seven years in a bungling and incompetent way, in fits and starts and with provocative and unnecessary statements."
Willkie's voice, which began to grow husky in Chicago yesterday, became so bad that a secretary telegraphed two doctors in Chicago and one in Beverly Hills, Calif., to fly to his special train.

SEEK PREVENTION OF PRICE JUMPS IN BUSINESS HIKE

Economists Forecast Vast Industrial, Employment Increases

By Irving Perlmutter
WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Administration economists, anticipating vast industrial and employment gains in the next year, urged immediate action today to prevent industrial botlenecks which might touch off a spiral of rocketing prices.
The recommendations were made in a memorandum prepared for circulation among high officials, particularly those concerned with defense.
While the report has not been made public, it was learned that the economists set out these general conclusions and recommendations:
Immediate expansion is necessary particularly in the number of railroad freight cars and production facilities for steel and machinery. Unless more are built, freight cars are expected to be 100,000 short of requirements by next fall. Steel production is slated to hit "practical capacity" by January, with shortages appearing already in some types of steel such as armor-plate. The machine tool industry needs 25 per cent more facilities.
Business is expected to produce employment such as the country has not seen since 1929. Depending on how fast the defense program gathers speed, industry is slated to take on between 2,500,000 and 3,750,000 more workers by next July. The conscription and national guard mobilization programs are due to take more than 1,000,000 additional men out of the labor market in this period.
If prices remain unchanged, the national income, which totaled $71,700, 000,000 in the last fiscal year, should reach $78,000,000,000 in this fiscal year which ends next June 30. If prices go up, and some rise is believed inevitable, the figure may shoot considerably past $80,000,000,000.
As for industrial bottlenecks and prices, the economists said that there was this possible prospect:
Once businessmen see such botlenecks delaying or making difficult the delivery of ordered goods they will start laying in huge supplies of things they expect to need in the future and at the same time bid up the prices not only of these specific items but nearly all others as well.
If this happens, the cost of goods may be 15 per cent higher next June than it is now. A rise of 5 per cent is believed probable, in any case. Some slight price increases have occurred in the last month.
All these estimates were based on calculations of the effect of defense expenditures, foreign trade, and tax

CAR-TRAIN CRASH IS FATAL TO MAN

Automobile Burns, Body Mangled In Accident In Monroe Vicinity

A man identified as Harold Crawford, 20, was killed instantly, his body mangled and his car demolished early Saturday night when struck by a northbound passenger train of the Missouri Pacific railroad.
The accident occurred about 7:30 p.m. at the Harmon-Johnson crossing about five miles south of Monroe, on the Columbia road.
Evidence found at the scene of the accident indicated that the train struck the car broadside, knocking it against a cattle guard. The car seemed to have rebounded and was dragged for approximately 40 yards up the track by the engine.
The railway right-of-way was strewn with burning wreckage for over 50 yards from the crossing.
Crawford's body, found about 30 yards from the crossing near a burning seat cushion, was mangled although the cause of his death was not known.

'INSOMNIA' FLIGHTS KEPT

Enemy Tries To Break Into London Territory From
2 Directions

LONDON, Sept. 13.—(Sunday)—(AP)— Four German air raids on London by the dark of night were beaten back Saturday night and early today, three of them by British fighter planes alone and the fourth by a thundering anti-aircraft barrage.
Some bombs fell, whistling, but the lightest in more than a week. Only odd bombs were dropped, and the raid appeared similar to the "insomnia" flights over London preceding the past week of all-night onslaughts.
The guns blazed away for 20 minutes before an alarm—the seventh since Saturday morning—was sounded.
Heavy barrages from the Thames estuary direction and from North London indicated the Germans attempted to break into the heart of London from two directions.
The gunfire along the Thames crept toward the north, apparently tracing the course of the raiders.

VITAMIN PROGRAM IS URGED FOR U.

Scientists Advocate Fortifying Health As Defense Move

PASADENA, Calif., Sept. 14.—(AP)— Fortify America's health for military defense by a nationwide vitamin-enrichment program—that is the proposal of California Institute of Technology scientists to the United States government.
Adopted nationally, a 20-page outline of the plan disclosed today, beneficial vitamins and minerals could be added to food at a cost approximately $1 per year per person. Vigor would be "stepped up" immediately, a taller, stronger and longer-lived race would ultimately result, yet no change in eating habits would be necessary.
The addition of vitamins at the source of processing, thus making food rich in its most important values when purchased, is suggested.
"Our expanding military forces require special applications of the new nutrition," the scientists declare.
"Airplane pilots need to pay special attention to their intake of vitamin A, a deficiency of which causes 'night blindness.'"
"In the case of executives and others working under great pressure, basic dietary requirements should be augmented by 5,000 international units of vitamin B1 and one tablespoon of vitamin B6 complex concentrate daily, and one cubic centimeter of concentrated liver each week.
"It would be an invaluable addition to our national defense to fortify the diets of our leaders at once and the diets of our whole population as soon as possible.
"We grow vastly more vitamins than are needed for our own consumption, but most of this is fed to animals, thrown away or destroyed, while our whole population obtains inadequate amounts.
"We are of the opinion that there is only one really effective and certain way to improve nutrition. This is to add vitamins and minerals to such staple foods as flour, corn meal and sugar, and also to some canned and bottled foods, at the source where they are processed. The plan is practical, simple and inexpensive."
The report was prepared by the Cal Tech Nutrition Conference, headed by Dr. Henry Borsock, biochemist and physician, and approved by Dr. Robert
A. Milliken, head of the institution.

HURRICANE HAS TURNED TOWARD BERMUDA AREA

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 14.—(P)—Turning away from the American coastline, a tropical hurricane in the Atlantic ocean moved today toward the resort island of Bermuda.

The weather bureau's evening advisory said the storm center was about 350 miles southeast of Bermuda at 7 p.m., "moving north northeastward about 14 miles per hour."

TOTALITARIAN STATE BUCHAREST, Sept. 15 (Sunday).—(P)—Creation of a totalitarian Iron Guard state was announced today in a decree by General Ion Antonescu, Rumania's military dictator.

The decree, setting up a state patterned on Nazi lines, established the Iron Guard as the sole Rumanian political party.

Antonescu, at the same time, announced a new cabinet with himself as chief of state, premier and minister of national defense.

Horia Sima, "fuehrer" of the Iron Guard, became vice-premier.

PLANES, BARRAGE DRIVE FOES OFF

"clear" intervals up to three hours, constituted a departure from the week-long German tactics of all-night raids and came as Britain's own bombers pounded heavily at German "invasion ports" on the coast of France.

The British Press Association said these latest blows for Britain were heavier than the fierce British attacks which ceased at dawn Saturday.

The British defense by fighter planes alone against the first three German night raids was without precedent since the start, September 7, of the almost continuous German air offensive.

The air ministry news service said that despite help of the clouds "only a few bombers managed to penetrate to Central London" in Saturday's raids.

The gunfire meeting this morning's raid grew heavier as the drone of plane engines increased by the minute. Guns in the southwest burst into action, and shell fragments fell on roofs and streets.

When the clouds rolled back the main London network of guns opened up. Buildings shook with the intensity of the barrage as the planes passed over.

The authoritative British Press Association estimated that 300 bombers had been thrown back by early evening in the southwest over the south-east coast which watchers described as "the biggest ever."

The raiders' first evening appearance here—after three forays made by late afternoon—was at 6:17 p.m. (2:17 p.m. EST); their second at 7:47 p.m.; their third at 9:36 p.m.

This third alarm was the shortest of all three, lasting only 17 minutes. By the habit of a week that had seemed endless, London's people had gone to their accustomed air raid shelters, and the unexpected freedom—if only for the time being—astonished them.

All this time, the Royal Air Force had been defending the metropolis alone, and only an occasional searchlight crept about in the sky. The anti-aircraft gunners, who night after night had been throwing steel all about the horizon, idled through it all.

Up to 8:30 p.m. (2:30 p.m. EST), the air ministry announced, 11 German planes had been shot down during the day to four British craft lost.

The three earlier daylight attacks seemed to be intended principally to feel out the state of the English coastal defenses—a significant detail in the light of the declaration of neutral military observers that this week-end would be one of "intense danger of invasion."

Britain was ready and some Englishmen said simply that they hoped the Germans would try invasion "so we can wipe their eye."

The government took steps to free telephonic and telegraphic communications—vital in any military emergency—from as much of the civilian load as was possible. It asked the public to confine their use to urgent messages.

Methodically, the bombers of the Royal Air Force, the country's first line of defense against any German attempt to cross the channel with troops, carried on their mission of destruction against Nazi bases.

They wrecked large concentrations along the French and Belgian coasts Friday night and early Saturday, the air ministry announced, and left Nazi dock facilities aflame at Boulogne, Calais, Dunkerque, Ostend and Antwerp.

Saturday night, at the end of an eight-day period of almost unbroken terror from the skies, the old face of London was pocked and battered by a score of heavy raids.

The casualty lists are posted each day in town and borough halls but the press is not permitted to publish them for what a home security ministry official called "obvious reasons."

Through Wednesday night, the dead were officially listed at 1,245 and the injured at 4,810.

The destruction wrought by bombs has been widespread, not only to buildings known to the nation and the world, but to hundreds of homes.

In the western part of the city those damaged include Buckingham Palace, Madame Tussaud's Wax Works, the House of Lords, the quadrant of fine shops on Regent street, exclusive Berkeley square and even Westminster Abbey. Two, bombs have fallen near Trafalgar square, imperilling the Nelson column, and near the National Gallery, facing the square, South Africa House, and on the Strand, Somerset House, great vault for ancient and modern records, have been damaged, and the law courts have been hit.

St. Paul's Cathedral, where Nelson is buried, is in peril from delayed action bombs in its courtyard.

Two newspaper offices have been struck; several streets are closed because of craters and unexploded time bombs.

"The City," London's financial district, has escaped rather lightly thus far, but bombs have fallen near the Bank of England and fire has gutted one bank.

The east-end—as stark a contrast to Berkeley square as could be imagined—has suffered the greatest loss of life and the most homes demolished, because of its proximity to the docks and large industrial plants.

The docks themselves have been repeatedly damaged, as have utilities and communications.

But the city's food situation is described as "good" by the government, which emphasized that there are adequate reserves.

The west end business houses, catering to the luxury trade, have suffered heavily. So have the fashionable restaurants and night clubs.

The new intensity of the anti-aircraft barrage has made a great difference. The people in the shelters feel now that somebody is "taking their part."

When the guns start to boom about 90 per cent of London sleeps happily through the clamor.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—(P)—The American export liner Exochorda radioed today that she had rescued "all 64 members" of the crew of the 5,199-ton British freighter Saint Agnes, sunk 700 miles west of Lisbon.

Export line officials in New York expressed belief the ship had been torpedoed.

The transformation occurred as Princess Helen sped home by train from a decade of exile past stations lined with Iron Guardists and peasants in costume.

With the Grecian princess, divorced wife of banished King Carol II, King Michael, 18-year-old son, King Mihai, but the premier, at the last minute, had abandoned plans to welcome her and had remained here for a series of secret conferences.

These had been reported at first connected with new disputes with Soviet Russia over frontier disturbances.

(It was reported Saturday night in Moscow that Grgiore Gafencu, Rumanian minister there, had answered a Soviet Russian protest with a note disclaiming any Rumanian responsibility for aerial or troop provocations and laying any such responsibility at Russia's door.)

ITALIANS ADVANCE CAIRO, Sept. 14.—(P)—Italy's sand-whipped legions swept across the Egyptian frontier tonight, tanks and armored cars rolling into the ruined villages of Sollum and Musaid under heavy attacks by the British air force.

British armored cars also harassed Italian Marshal Rudolfo Graziani's troops in what may be the initial thrust of a full-fledged drive.

Although the Italians forced a wedge 10 miles deep, a British communiqué declared the "situation is well in hand."

How many troops the Italians were putting into their advance was not known but they were believed to be in considerable numbers.

This apparent prelude to a desert blitzkrieg came with all Egypt momentarily expecting a big Fascist offensive.

British headquarters described the Italian move as an "advance" rather than an "attack," emphasizing that the British never had made a port, or Mussaid which, they said, were only bomb-bombed villages used chiefly as centers for British patrols harassing the Italians.

The British, on the alert for the start of a real mechanized offensive against Egypt, the Sudan, or both, said the Italians were using airplanes, armored cars and trucks to transport their troops and were continuing their thrust beyond the two occupied villages.

Wesley said he shot accidentally last June 16.

Wesley's chief accusers—Tubbee's wife Jennie and her sons—did not put in an appearance at the trial today held at the forks of Dancing Rabbit creek where just 110 years ago the then-powerful Choctaws smoked the pipe of peace with the white man, and drew up a treaty whereby they surrendered their hunting grounds comprising about a third of the present state of Mississippi, and most of them moved on to Oklahoma.

The impoverished remnants of the tribe on the Neshoba reservation at Philadelphia, Miss., also stayed away from today's trial. The only Indians who appeared were friends and his relatives, but there were several hundred white spectators, drawn by the drama of the occasion.

The trial was delayed somewhat as Wesley and his friends again and again grouped themselves about the monument marking the site of the 1830 treaty in order to be photographed by spectators from Mississippi, Tennessee, Alabama and Louisiana.

"Then Wesley, in the soft broken English he speaks, told his story and won acquittal.

The trial had assumed interest because Chief Wesley's wife last month appealed to the Great White Father in Washington for the right for Wesley to go to trial only in an Indian court in accordance with the treaty which she said declared that all would be "bobbishellie" with an Indian going into county court if he killed a white man, but into a tribal court if he killed another Indian.

President Roosevelt didn't reply, and Wesley was tried and acquitted. He paid his attorney with chickens and eggs, and invited the Judge John C. Stearns to come along and see today's ceremony, and represent him.

The judge came but didn't stand for Wesley.

The Indians showed up today dressed in dirty calicoes and colorful gingham which they wear. Wesley wore an embroidered blouse.

The party that began tonight will be resumed and finished two weeks hence with a barbecue. Some one said after such an event the tribal ritual would be a part of the tribal ritual.

One by one the members of the tribe—men first, then women and children, filed up to the blank-faced chief and shook his hand when the trial had ended.

The day's injured were two, neither serious. One motorist, rounding one of the narrow curves on the dirt road winding up to the treaty grounds, collided with an approaching car and received cuts. Another motorist, attempting to turn around, crashed into a car, then careened into a ditch and overturned. He escaped injury.

most beyond recognition. The car, carried on beyond the body, was a mass of twisted steel and shattered wood, parts of which were still burning late last night.

Witnesses to the accident stated that they heard and saw what they thought was an explosion, but wondered why the train backed up after it had passed, and upon investigation, discovered the tragedy.

The body was identified by Miss Maggie Shavers, friend of Crawford, who, living nearby, witnessed the accident. No marks of identification hereafter was disclosed today by authoritative British sources.

The informant said it was these balloons that trapped a German bomber in a raid on the city early Friday. Previously it was announced merely that a German plane was caught and destroyed by a barrage balloon.

Details of the new balloon were withheld. Coastal observers said the new type bags had been used successfully against dive-bombers before they were put up in London.

CAROL IN SPAIN SITGES, Spain, Sept. 14.—(P)—Former King Carol of Rumania took up temporary residence today in a hotel overlooking the Mediterranean coast, 18 miles southwest of Barcelona.

He left his special train with his red-haired friend, Magda Lupescu, her four dogs, and 10 members of his retinue Friday night and reserved four rooms for himself on the main floor of the hotel. He was expected to remain here several days before continuing to his exile in Portugal.

NIGHT BATTLE LONDON, Sept. 14.—(P)—Caught in the glare of British searchlights, a German Heinkel 111 bomber was shot down in flames by a British fighter in a night air raid on London.

The fighter was cruising above London in the moonlight when its pilot saw the Heinkel held in the concentrated beams of searchlights several miles to the north.

The Briton pursued for 20 minutes. When the fighter opened fire the bomber dropped its bombs to lighten its load.

CHECK DISEASES IN PRESENT WAR

Improved Preventative Measures Among Main Reasons For Drop

(By the Special News Service of the Associated Press)

Six of the diseases which in past great wars have taken more lives than bullets have appeared in Europe's present battle areas.

But to date each has been stopped, with apparently fair chances it may not spread to dangerous proportions.

The explanations, promising something new on the good side in war, come from physicians of England, Germany, Switzerland and France. Most of the examples of the German cleanup of battlefields come from Switzerland.

The diseases so far reported are flu, cerebro-spinal meningitis, typhus, typhoid, smallpox and dysentery.

These reports were gathered after American physicians had suggested it is unusual and perhaps significant that after a year of war no great epidemics have been reported.

LONDON—Influenza and cerebro-spinal meningitis are the only infectious diseases which have risen in England in the present war.

Better housing, better food and improved preventive measures are expected to hold even those two in check.

"I think," a medical official explained, "we are safe in predicting there will never be in this war an influenza epidemic similar to those of 1918 and 1919."

"A third of the population has been rehoused since 1918 in cleaner, more sanitary dwellings."

"Another factor working against disease is the large supply of food. In 1918, when influenza struck, it found a mighty ally in malnourishment. Don't forget we then had two and a half years of blockade."

Cerebro-spinal meningitis, this official said, is now treated with the new drug sulfanilamide. This has cut its death rate from as high as 90 per cent, down to 20, and in some hospitals to 10.

Ministry of health figures, not yet complete, show 5,000 influenza deaths since January 1, 1940, against 3,500 in the same period of 1939.

British medical and scientific journals have commented on the surprise when evacuated children failed to develop epidemics. Three of the principal worries, measles, whooping cough and diphtheria, actually dropped.

BERLIN—German physicians on the heels of the German Army have operated so efficiently that up to now the usual war epidemics have not occurred.

An authoritative spokesman said today occupied territories were given special consideration. The Scandinavian lands, Holland, Belgium and France, he said, gave comparatively little concern to medical authorities, but Poland, where typhus is endemic, furnished a "field day for medical authorities."

Germans there encountered conditions which medical authorities describe as primitive. Doctors who followed the army into Poland required almost universal compulsory vaccinations. Hundreds of medical centers were set up for mothers and babies, often in kindergartens.

This authority stated the parts of Poland under German domination are healthier today than a year ago. He said that while the army medical service gives some attention to civilian emergencies, the military is entirely separate from the Reich's public health service and leaves general problems to public health officials.

German health officers, he went on, withdrew when local medical services were reestablished.

"Thus," he said, "Poland is now medically autonomous."

In this furnishing of German doctors, the ranks at home in Germany are said to have been thinned at times. This situation was met in some instances by slightly shortening the medical school courses.

German health authorities said there were only two cases of typhus in the transportation of tens of thousands of Germans out of Baltic lands to Germany and to portions of Poland annexed by the Reich.

CHANCYS, on the Franco-Swiss Frontier—French and foreign health experts who have traveled through occupied areas of France say German military and French civil and military doctors have saved France from epidemics, and perhaps plagues, under worst conditions of civilized times.

These conditions were not only combat-destruction and its resulting contamination, but the great numbers of refugees and the widespread areas to which they spread.

The health experts put the finger on the following areas as centers of typhoid which now are fenced in by rigid military or civil health control and in which sanitary precautions and reconstruction are enforced.

The first war areas of Flanders, including Dunkerque, parts of Alsace and the Doubs river area opposite the Swiss frontier. Also small city areas like Orleans, where war demolished the sewage and water systems. Likewise, areas such as Brittany, where typhoid and dysentery were spread by the refugee population. Another is the slope of the Pyrenees in unoccupied France, where sanitary conditions of civilian internment camps were found bad.

Labor battalions of French prisoners have been digging wells around Dunkerque. In some districts of the occupied zone, the Germans even have established military "water kitchens," where water is boiled before civil or military population is permitted to use it.

Danger of contamination of water from bodies of animals and humans cluttering battle areas was removed in large part, the experts said, by German cleanup squads.

These squads have combed battlefields and areas of the north, sending German dead back to the cemetery at Aachen and cremating other dead in mobile crematories similar to those used in Poland.

Workers from both zones in France reported typhus, typhoid and smallpox have been limited to localized zones and apparently crushed out. They called the work of the German medical sanitary units thorough and efficient, and that of the French Army and civil units frequently heroic.

In occupied zones, the Germans have put refugees through delousing stations, as lice are carriers of typhus. Prisons and internment camps in the occupied zone, the health sources agree, are in better condition than in the unoccupied.

The Germans maintain rigid health sanitation regulations in camps in which they hold almost a million Allied soldiers. Local French authorities must feed and house the French war prisoners, and diet and living conditions vary greatly in these camps, depending on the region.

The Vichy government's health ministry said they lack reports on conditions from various departments and have been unable to provide much help or coordination owing to disruption of communications.

Doctors in many French departments have banded together with cooperation of the mayors. Many demobilized army medical sanitation units have remained voluntarily in their formations to aid civilian authorities.

There's Danger On The Lake Ruled 3 Months By Old Lady

Michigan Becomes Danger Period Until November Ends

By Herbert A. Hall
GRAND HAVEN, Mich., Sept. 14.—(AP)—An invisible and unspoken warning flashes across broad Lake Michigan these days.

There are no more storm warnings than usual flying in the lake, and no special orders have gone out to the coast guard. The calendar simply shows it's September—and that's sufficient for any lake-wise mariner.

This month—and the two following—constitute the big lake's most acute danger season.

It is the season when the wise skipper hovers over his barometer and weather bulletins, the season when he won't be misled by a calm sea and a cloudless sky. The season—above all others—when the Old Lady of the Lake reasserts her power over men and the ships they navigate.

Landlubbers may scoff at the ancient axiom that September, October and November are Lake Michigan's most fatal months, but the weight of history is against them.

Mariners have been trying to out-guess the Old Lady nearly 300 years. LaSalle tried it in September, 1679, and Captain Albert L. Anderson tried it in September, 1929. Perhaps, someone will try it again this year, and, if he does, he will guess wrong just as did LaSalle and Captain Anderson. The Old Lady always is just one jump ahead of you.

If you still want conclusive evidence, glance over this list of the Old Lady's victims:

One balmy September afternoon in 1679, LaSalle and his party stood near the mouth of what now is Green Bay, Wisconsin, and watched the 45-ton sailing ship Griffin head toward the open lake on the first leg of a voyage to Fort Niagara. There wasn't the slightest hint of heavy weather, but that night Lake Michigan exploded in one of her sudden storms, and the vessel never was seen again. Most historians agree the craft went down somewhere near the head of the lake. The pattern of this earliest major Great Lake disaster seldom has varied in the 261 years that have followed.

On the evening of September 7, 1860, the passenger steamer Lady Elgin sailed from Chicago for Milwaukee with 400 persons aboard and nothing more than a rain squall troubled the big lake. While the lights of Winnetka still were visible off the port bow, the steamer was rammed and sunk by a schooner. Approximately 300 persons were drowned in this disaster, a toll which never has been surpassed on Lake Michigan.

On September 8, nine years later, the steamer Hippocampus sailed from St. Joseph, Mich., with a cargo of peaches for Chicago. Again the lake was calm and untroubled, but—less than two hours later, the Hippocampus had sunk without warning, and all but 17 of the 43 men aboard had drowned. Some of the survivors theorized that a collision with a submerged log in St. Joseph harbor had started a leak, but nobody ever knew for sure.

Then there was the Alpena, luxury lake liner of her day, which sailed from Grand Haven, Mich., the evening of October 15, 1880, with a passenger list of 50 and a crew of 25. The weather was unusually fine for that time of year, although Captain Nelson W. Napier had been warned of an impending storm. The captain, however, thought he would be "well over to the other side" before the storm came. He guessed wrong, and the Alpena never was seen again.

October 23, 1887, marked the terrific Lake Michigan storm which smashed the sturdy steamer Vernon while she was en route to Milwaukee. There were 42 passengers and crew members aboard when the vessel cleared the straits and stood out to the open lake, but only one man lived to tell of the furious sou'wester which wrecked the steamer.

Nor does the list end there. Captain Anderson, of the gravel carrier Andaste, was deceived by a calm lake the evening of September 3, 1929, when he left Grand Haven. Like Captain Napier, of the Alpena, he believed he could get across before any storm broke, and, like Captain Napier, he misjudged the Old Lady's power. The bull of the steamer, Captain Anderson and his 24 men, lie somewhere off Saugatuck, Mich.

The steel car ferry Milwaukee, loaded with 27 freight cars, left Milwaukee harbor the afternoon of October 22 that same year. To be sure, there was a storm in progress, but nobody had the slightest doubt the powerful ship would make the crossing, just as she had made scores of others in heavy weather. Late in the afternoon of the 24th, coast guards out of Haver, Wis., began to recover bodies identified as those of the ferry's crew. Fifty-three men went down with the Milwaukee, and no one survived to tell the tale.

So the warning still goes to "watch out for the Old Lady" the next three months.

Seventy-five per cent of the inhabitants of Nicaragua live in the western half of the country.

Hunting Regulations

It's easy to see that the hunting season is just around the corner for:

Pop has dragged his shotgun down off the shelf and has gone over it with the oilcan and the greased rag;

Willie is raising the dickens because school is opening and he won't have an everyday chance to tromp the woods from sunrise to sunset with his Christmas rifle in search of game;

And even Sister is begging that she be included in this year's program.

Yes, it's almost hunting time and from all reports there will be ample game for everybody—provided that the market hunter and the "omery" out-of-season slaughterer is kept out of the woods and field until the legal period comes around.

There will be hunting for squirrels, rabbits, doves, quail, duck, geese, coots, gallinules, rails, woodcock, bear, deer, chipmunk, among others. The seasons have been set by law, and the regulations have been generous.

Reports seeping into our ears are to the effect that some have been bagging game already, long before the time is ripe as the law fixes it. But we are glad to learn that in this section we have an active agent in Groves Brown of the State Department of Conservation. Within the last two weeks he has reported more than 10 arrests of persons shooting and killing out of season.

It is not only the duty of agents employed by the State and Federal Government to nab violators; it is also the duty of the average sportsman to stop it when he can. He doesn't have to make himself obnoxious, as it may seem to him, but an out-of-season hunter should be reported. And it only takes a few arrests to stop it.

The season on migratory waterfowl has been lengthened this year by the graciousness of the Federal Government and the manner in which conservation has been carried in the last several years. Ducks, geese, and other fowl have definitely made a comeback. Other game is the same thing.

We hope that other Conservation agents will follow the footsteps of Mr. Brown. The average sportsman hunts because he considers it a pastime, a diversion from his everyday duties.

Let's wipe out illegal hunting. The "woods and field hog" must be eradicated—according to law.

CONSCRIPTION HERE—AND THERE

One of the most ubiquitous, and certainly the most vocal, opponents of conscription in the United States is the Communist party.

And this is odd, for Russia, to whom these people owe at least spiritual allegiance has just called up its youth of 18, 19, and 20 for compulsory army service.

Conscription, then, is fine for the "socialist fatherland," but the United States must have no part of it.

This is very puzzling to those who are inept in Communist dialectic. To an outsider it looks as though these people were much concerned that Russia should win any war in which it might become involved, but less concerned about how America might fare in a similar crisis.

America will be defended no less resolutely, by means democratically decided upon, perhaps even by such means as the Communists adopt on the home grounds, reject here.

THE LIFE OF A CHILD

Again the season is here when the motorist's first duty is to sharpen his eye for what goes on at the curb, to have a foot ready for the brake and a firm hand on the wheel against the darting of a small figure across his path. The children are home again and trooping to and from school.

Every driver of an automobile carries a share of the responsibility for their safety. He cannot discharge that responsibility by stepping on the gas and blowing his horn in crowded and busy streets. Only the utmost in care and alertness is insurance against grief and remorse.

In the passing years children have learned to be watchful and not to take chances, but still they are children, ruled by impulse and thoughtlessness. A moment of forgetfulness can place them in the direst peril.

Hurry if you must when haste is safe, but don't buy a few seconds with the life of a child.

HATCH ACT RULING

It has been held officially (by the controller general, Washington) that a government employee relieved of his office for political activity under the Hatch act can be re-employed by the government in a position other than that previously held.

The question came up in the case of Charles B. Coakley, Easton, Penn. Coakley was relieved as a supervisory employee of the WPA when he ran for office in the recent primary. Coakley lost out at the primary and he has now applied for reinstatement.

It was held that he could not have the old job back, but that there was nothing in the law to prevent him from filling another federal place if he could get it.

Sherwood Anderson Declares Man Must Regain His Feeling
For Man—Here In The U. S.

(Sixth of 24 articles on "Our Country," written exclusively for NEA Service and Monroe Morning World by the nation's most famous authors.)

By Sherwood Anderson
(Author of "Dark Laughter," "A Midwest Childhood," "Puzzled America," etc.)

It seems to me that, in surrendering to the totalitarian idea, man is simply throwing away what men have fought and died for all during man's history. It must be that present-day man is very tired.

So we are to glorify the state, that vague thing up there. We are to bow down to it. Individuality is to be thrown overboard.

The state, the people, the masses, the proletariat. How we run about babbling these meaningless words.

There is no such thing. Such words have no real meaning.

There is to be this man—the leader—he only to develop his individuality. We are to make ourselves shadows of him.

It comes to that. What else?

Well, it will be more efficient. There will be no discussions, no questions. The leader speaks and we must blindly obey.

Everything man has gained to be thrown away, French revolution, American revolution, the opportunity for the exceptional man to arise. Freedom of speech, everything thrown aside.

For efficiency. Guns made faster, killing made easier—all of man's feeling for man, that can grow only with the growth of individuality—all of this sacrificed to efficiency.

Are we so tired? It is all tiredness. What else?

It is a dream of tired men. It is a throwing away of all responsibility of man for man. That is the totalitarian state.

Are we so tired of body and spirit that we must make the state our mother, creep like babies to suck at the dry dugs of the state?

It is a sickening thought—the final surrender to hopelessness. It must be stopped. Man must regain his feeling for man.

And why not here, in America? It is still a new, fresh land. All of our traditions cry out against surrender of freedom of movement, of speech, of the right of the individual to find his way to his own God, to love and understanding of his fellow man.

It seems to me that there is again a chance for America to become as it was in early days the land of an old tired world's hope of renewal.

Because human reason has not yet prevailed, our arms must, writes Philip Wylie in the next article of this series on "Our Country."

JIMMIE FIDLER In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 14.—Dear Staff: This is in reply to your other inquiries about the new nickel-in-the-slot movie machines which promise to land the picture on the country soon.

Frankly, I doubt if they'll be as immensely popular as their originators expect. I base this opinion on the fact that the eye remembers longer than the ear. Here's what I mean:

While the average man will go into cafes and drop nickels into machine after machine to hear the same popular song, I doubt if that same man will want to see a movie short more than once—not the sort of movies he'll get for a nickel, at any rate.

Therefore, while it's probable the new machines will be very popular at the start, due to their novelty and the freshness of their film fare, what's going to happen when the newness wears off?

Can enough short pictures be created weekly to give the public a constantly fresh screen menu? If not, will the average nickel-dropper-iner grow disgusted after he has plugged his jinx into several machines and gotten pictures he's seen previously?

Many producers sincerely believe these film boxes will help theaters by reviving public interest in movies. I think exactly the opposite may prove true. Won't that portion of the public that grows weary of sitting through repetitions of nickel-in-the-slot films extend their disfavor to include all pictures?

Obviously, Big Money doesn't agree with my theory, for manufacturers are plunging millions into these safe projects. Only time will supply the answer, but I do know this: About the tenth time I sit down to a quiet meal and some slug drops a coin in a machine and I have to see and hear a movie I already know by heart, I'm either going to start heaving dishes or resolve never to enter another cafe featuring a nickel-in-the-slot picture machine.

JIMMIE FIDLER

Dear Boss: A cafe proprietor with imagination might use those canned movies to whet patrons' appetites. A shot of Garbo, for instance, could suggest a well-iced salad, Lana Turner a leg of lamb, Hugh Herbert a dish of tutti-frutti and Lupe Velez a hot tamale. The possibilities are endless.

Tyrene Power and his Annabella plane for NY today and from there (after medics have given her final check-ups), take off for a three-week vacation jaunt through Canada's maritime provinces. . . . Dean Jagger and 20th Century-Zanuck have cancelled a contract clause guaranteeing him time-out each year for a Bdw stage show. . . . Reason for Bob Taylor's and Barbara Stanwyck's current top-shopping spurge is an appealing letter from Bob's childhood nurse, now matron-in-charge of a Bethel, Alaska, orphanage. . . . Jack Oakie has lost 16 pounds in two weeks on the new diet.

Don't be too sure about this latest Jawn Barrymore-Elaine Barrie rift being another passing cloud. For years John's proudest possession has been an enormous shade tree which originally grew in front of his old Tower Road house. When he acquired a Bel Air manse for Elaine, he paid lumberjacks to have the tree moved there—and left it standing through innumerable bickerings that ensued. But this time, it's different. John's first gesture, after their latest quarrel, was to hire a tree-moving crew for a midnight raid. The old tree once more shades the Tower Road mansion!

If you want a good bet, offer odds that Sam Goldwyn and Warner Brothers are mulling a business consolidation. . . . Stanley (Ida's papa) Lupine writes from London that Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon are working with him on a BBC show. . . . No foolin'! Orson Welles, who's worried about recent weight losses, now eats two big steaks, five potatoes and a dish of cereal every day—for breakfast! . . . Now it's Mary Beth Hughes who has the highly inflammable Jackie Coogan ablaze. . . . The Director Louis King has adopted a baby girl.

Director Garson Kanin will give you two-to-one Carole Lombard gets an Academy Award nomination for her work in "They Knew What They Wanted." . . . Mary Servoss, famous NY stage mime, has signed for a screen debut in Columbia's "Alias the Lone Wolf." . . . 20th Century is giving Dorothy Lamour a vacation from sarongs in her "Chad Hanna" role—she'll wear tight leotards! . . . Quit kidding Clark Gable about his ranching venture—he's just bought 900 fruit trees, and an orchard that big is no kidding matter. . . . No wonder that backslapping tumble left Brenda Joyce with a limp—she lit in a cactus patch!

Wot's this about "Liz" Whitney sending her polo-playing cowboy suit or back to Reno in dejection? . . . Maybe Trudie Wyler, Beverly Hills society gal who hitch-flew to San Antonio to plead for the organization of a Women's Air Corps, didn't impress the government, but she did all right for Trudie. Let fat part in Paramount's "I Wanted Wings."

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE MOST SPECTACULAR FIGURE OF THE KLONDIKE—W. C. Gates, better known as "Swiftwater Bill," a dishwasher of Circle City (1896) who struck it rich in the Klondike, married and divorced three sisters in succession and then married their mother.

The old lady refused to marry him but he took advantage of her fondness for scrambled eggs to force her into marriage. He bought up the entire Dawson City stock in eggs, paying a dollar a piece for 961 eggs, and announced that unless she married him, she would have to forego her favorite hen fruit. He was a man always willing to bet $1,000 on the turn of a card anywhere, anytime, and he had a standing offer out to that effect.

Human Side Of The News OUR CHILDREN

By EDWIN C. HILL

(Copyright, 1940, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Unfortunately, history isn't a business. It can't write things off, re-capitalize and start over on a new basis of tangible assets. This particular piece of history is the poorest housekeeper of the lot. She doesn't like to throw anything away—even a hang-nail monarchy which is nothing more than make-believe.

We were thinking of King Carol's model T Ford of 20 years ago. It was upholstered entirely in red plush, and it had gold crests and royal insignia worked in everywhere, with a tassel of some kind of doo-dad tickling the king's neck or obscuring his view whichever way he looked. No matter where today is going, if anywhere, yesterday is always riding in the rumble-seat, and usually doing a lot of back-seat driving.

Carol and Lupescu move on to Switzerland. Rumania probably won't miss them much, as it picks up its old routine of essentially feudal, or medieval squabbles, conspiracies and hit-an-run wars, like all the rest of the Balkans—unless Germany irons them out, which it most certainly will do if it knocks over England. Which might be something worse again.

One trouble with Rumania—that is ancient Rumania—was that it had lions twice as big as any other lions anywhere. That got them to feeling mighty heraldis and every once in a while they would start taking in too much territory and somebody would run them through the wringer. Trying to live up to those lions really might have had something to do with their lack of any quiet home life.

Consider, in contrast, peaceful Kansas with the merely vegetative prairie dog as its principal fauna. It never starts the people a bad example by starting anything it can't finish. It holes up quicker than a smart cun in protective devices are based on the principle of live and let live. It inspires no lordly mien or grandiose schemes. Perhaps if Kansas had big lions instead of prairie dogs and horned toads, William Allen White might be an iron man or a run-away king. Who knows?

The Romans gave the Rumanians a good drubbing. Rumania, or what is left of it today, used to comprise the Roman provinces of Dacia and Morelia. The country was quite thoroughly Latinized, as its language shows today, but was essentially unchanged. A thousand years before the Romans came, they had been battling the Hittites, on slight provocation, it seems. The Hittites led the league in those days, and meager historical accounts indicate that the Rumanians were usually on the short end of the fighting but always came back for more.

As a nation, Rumania is only 62 years old. It was in 1878 that Montenegro, Serbia and Rumania were collectively recognized by the great powers of Europe. The Serbs had gained a limited autonomy in 1815 and Greece had obtained nominal freedom in 1831, after a hard struggle of 10 years. During the 19th century, the Balkans provided Graustarkian diversion for the rest of the world but the trouble was that it wasn't merely good theater.

On the eastern threshold of Europe, they were wired into high-voltage continental power politics and no good ever came from their picturesque feudal hangover. Everything might have been all right had it not been for that coveted Danubian waterway, the route to India and quite a lot of loot which interested neighboring predatory powers. Add to these complications an ancient racial and linguistic stew—mountainers with hair in their ears, light trigger-fingers, stimulating goat milk diet, a yen for fighting Turks, Bulgars, Sunnites and Hittites—and you have something that even the League of Nations had to duck.

Sunday School Lesson

The Sunday School Lesson For Sept. 22
Text: Proverbs 4:10-27.

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.
(Editor of Advance)

The voice of wisdom is the voice of experience, but of experience carefully considered and studied. It is not enough to take the voice of experience alone or in any limited way, because one may not see all the results of action.

Years ago, on a visit to New York, I preached on Sunday at a little church in a Long Island community. I was entertained for the day by a man who had an official position as inspector of certain public buildings in New York. He was manifestly a man of fine Christian integrity, with a family around him, particularly of boys, who reflected something of an ideal home life. It was a pleasure to be in the home.

When he told me of his occupation, I chaffed him somewhat good-naturedly, suggesting that men like him in such responsible positions of inspection could do much to prevent graft in city life. He took me quite seriously, and I have never forgotten his reaction.

He was not a man to pursue honesty as the best policy, but was a man in honest if it had not been for his own interest. But he spoke out of the voice of experience, as a father of sons to whom he was determined to set an honorable example.

He said that he had noticed, where men became wealthy and prosperous dishonestly, that although apparently no bad result came to themselves, the consequences upon their sons and members of their families were often very disastrous.

What does a grafting or dishonest father gain if he builds up worldly goods and attains a sort of success, to find that his sons are imitating his success and possibly his energy, but also his crookedness, and are going down to ruin in a worldly as well as a spiritual way, because of the false heritage that he has given them?

Observe what is happening in the world. Think about it, as that man had thought about it and observed. Take a long range view, and see if the voice of wisdom is not right when it links human welfare with uprightness and with right choice.

"The path of the just is as the shining light, that shineth more and more unto the perfect day." That is a rich and beautiful figure, and in contrast is the way of the wicked that is full of darkness and stumbling.

"Keep thy heart with all diligence," says the voice of wisdom, "for out of this are the issues of life." We think immediately of that other saying, "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." It is in our will, the inner choice backed by good judgment, that our destiny rests.

To set before oneself the goal of good living, the way of honor and decency, is to be worldly wise as well as spiritually sound. Even where men have to make great sacrifices to maintain their integrity, the upright way is justified, for what comfort or gain is there for any man in realizing that what he has won has been won at the cost of himself?

PARENTS MUST COOPERATE

"Charlie, will you stop that or will I make you stop?" "Now, daddy, let him alone. Come, Charlie, you come to mother."

"That's right. Whenever I try to correct him you teach him that he needn't pay any attention to what I say. For the last half hour he has banged that thing down on the radio stand. He'll break every tube in it, and look at the wood. He's smashing everything in the house, but you say it's all right so it's all right."

"He's only a child. What do you expect?"

"I expect him to behave himself. What will he be at fourteen if he is like this at four? You're laying up plenty of trouble for yourself with that boy. From now on I'm taking him in hand. I'm his father and I'm not going to have him reared into a criminal if I can help it. You march yourself right up to your room, young man, and you stay there until I tell you to come out. And your mother isn't going to help you out any sooner than that, either. March."

You can't blame father for that. Mother is to blame. She is with the child all day, every day, and her training is what counts in the behavior of the child. If she does not teach him some sort of cooperation with his family, how is he going to learn it? And if she keeps telling him he is all right and to never mind what daddy says how is he going to have any regard for his father? And if he has none, who is going to stand in his father's place? Fathers have a distinct and essential place in the lives of their children.

For the sake of the children fathers and mothers must come to some understanding about their rearing. They must settle between them, privately, just what their policy of education and training is, and help each other administer it. Only in that way, with both parents pulling together, can the children know what a good home is, and what is expected of them there. Mother's boy, father's girl, either of them, is more likely to fail than mother and father's child ever is. Any child needs two parents and when one or the other does not function the child is the loser.

Boys Need Fathers

In the early years the mother has to be the mainstay of the child's life, but that should not keep father from taking his share in the education, training, planning, enjoying that ought to be the lot of all parents. Some fathers make it a point to share their free time with the children, taking them out for walks, on trips, and later, for more prolonged and extensive experiences.

It is especially important that fathers take a close and affectionate attitude toward their sons. Boys begin to need their father's point of view, his influence and example, while they are still in the lower grades of the school. From there on, father needs to take a greater share of their training up. No boy can fully enjoy his youth, no boy can grow into manhood with happiness and security without his father's care. It takes two parents to rear the children.

In Washington

WASHINGTON—Although it has been more or less lost sight of in the press of more spectacular happenings, the government's drive to reestablish the rubber-growing industry in Latin America may eventually rate as one of the most important events of the year.

Launched as part of the hemisphere defense program, the venture is really one which the agriculture department has been plugging for 20 years. If completed along the lines now projected, it would not merely mean a strategically safe source for United States rubber import; it would break the Anglo-Dutch Far Eastern rubber monopoly and cut Uncle Sam's annual rubber bill in half.

Incidentally, it would probably mean more exports for the United States, by vastly increasing Latin America's purchasing power.

Perennial Request Granted

Every year for a long time agriculture department has been asking Congress to finance the experimental and research work which must be done before the industry can be reestablished in the new world. Each year Congress has turned the request down.

This year, however, the request came up just after the conquest of Holland, when Congress was beginning to worry about the future of the Dutch East Indies and the Malay peninsula, whence 90 per cent of the United States rubber supply now comes. So $500,000 was voted, and the department went to work.

Three research expeditions are now in the field; one along the Amazon and two ranging from Colombia to Yucatan. Local governments are giving full cooperation and are chipping in to defray various local expenses. Reports from the field expeditions won't be ready until some time this winter.

If the war should choke off the existing rubber supply within the next year or so, none of this will be of any use in the emergency. What the experts have in mind is a long-range program which probably couldn't begin to have an effect on the world rubber market for eight or 10 years.

STUDENTS RETURN FROM N. Y. TRIP

Rayville Girls, Youth Broadcast Over Chain, See World's Fair

The three Rayville high school youths who were the concern of Northeast Louisiana when held as hostages by Arkansas convicts in the fields and swamps north of Columbia, have something else to talk about now.

They have forgotten, for the moment, all about their harrowing experiences when held as hostages, and are talking about a trip to New York—how much they enjoyed the broadcast on the "We, The People" program over the Columbia Broadcasting System; how thrilling the journey by air was, and how much fun they had in seeing the sights of the big city.

Friday afternoon a group from Rayville waited at Selman Field for the return of the trio by Delta Air Lines. Soon the silver plane hovered into sight and landed without a jar on the runways.

The transport pulled to a stop, the silver door opened, and Miss Gladys Diamond stepped out, smiling at her folks and friends waiting to greet her. She was followed by Miss Voncille Williams and Gerry Harrigill who seemed equally as elated at seeing their folks again.

They were so excited they couldn't talk.

"Oh, we had a fine time," they said. "We weren't nervous at all when we went on the air. It was lots of fun."

"They treated us swell up there and one night we went to see the World's Fair. The rest of the time we spent seeing the sights," they said.

Soon they were surrounded by their parents and friends who led them to waiting cars—and home. They have much to talk about now, judging from their enthusiasm over the trip to Gotham.

Woodpeckers Cause Family To Replace Wall Of House

Guns, Poisoned Meat Fail To Drive Birds Away From N. Y. Home

CORTLAND, N. Y., Sept. 14.—(P)—A new siding was placed on the home of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Sampson today after the Sampsons threw up their hands in despair at a blitzkrieg staged by woodpeckers.

"Why it's been terrible," Mrs. Sampson complained, "They start at daylight, six or eight of them at a time, and bang away until dusk. The folks who lived here before us shot 25 or 30, but just as many more came back. They have been busy since last March."

Sampson admitted he tried a gun and also hung poison meat on the walls.

"You can shoot away all you want at them," he said, "but before you are inside the house they are hammering away again. As far as poison salt pork is concerned, they are too smart to touch it."

Sampson viewed the job of placing asbestos cement shingles on his house and commented:

"If they get through that, I certainly don't know what we can do."

Guns, Poisoned Meat Fail To Drive Birds Away From N. Y. Home

CORTLAND, N. Y., Sept. 14.—(P)—A new siding was placed on the home of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Sampson today after the Sampsons threw up their hands in despair at a blitzkrieg staged by woodpeckers.

"Why it's been terrible," Mrs. Sampson complained, "They start at daylight, six or eight of them at a time, and bang away until dusk. The folks who lived here before us shot 25 or 30, but just as many more came back. They have been busy since last March."

Sampson admitted he tried a gun and also hung poison meat on the walls.

"You can shoot away all you want at them," he said, "but before you are inside the house they are hammering away again. As far as poison salt pork is concerned, they are too smart to touch it."

Sampson viewed the job of placing asbestos cement shingles on his house and commented:

"If they get through that, I certainly don't know what we can do."

BEN DOWNING JR. LAUDED BY LEADER

A letter of congratulations from Ophelia Stone Stone, academic dean at Louisiana State University, concerning the character of work accomplished by Ben R. Downing Jr., in the second semester of his freshman year at the university, was received Saturday by the youth's parents.

The letter in part said, "You have attained for the (second) semester a rating of 'two point five plus,' entitling you to the distinction of the following rank:

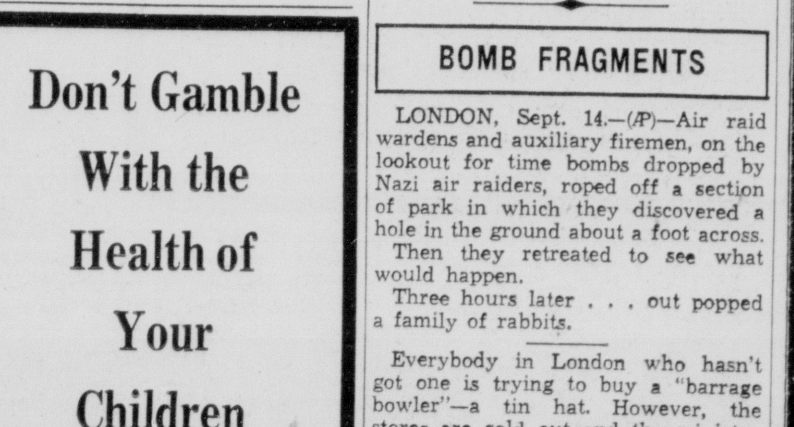

"Ben R. Downing Jr., honor student, cum laude."

Miss Stone, who is also chairman of the faculty committee on honors also stated in the letter that she wished "to express our pride and satisfaction in your accomplishments. It is truly an indication of future success in what you undertake, success that will enrich and enlarge your own life work and reflect credit on your alma mater," the letter said.

Downing left last week for L. S. U., where he is a sophomore for the 1940-41 session.

BOMB FRAGMENTS

LONDON, Sept. 14.—(P)—Air raid wardens and auxiliary firemen, on the lookout for time bombs dropped by Nazi air raiders, roped off a section of park in which they discovered a hole in the ground about a foot across. Then they retreated to see what would happen.

Three hours later . . . out popped a family of rabbits.

Everybody in London who hasn't got one is trying to buy a "barrage bowler"—a tin hat. However, the stores are sold out and the ministry of supply has requisitioned all available stocks for soldiers, sailors, ARP workers, nurses and doctors.

Shell splinters on the streets are "pennies from heaven" to Cockney boys, who sell them to souvenir hunters.

Residents of a North London area are trying to get a Boy Scout bagpipe band ousted from its practice hall because they mistake the skirls for sirens, but the scoutmaster is standing firm.

"The music of the pipes helps more than anything else in times like these," he argues.

Overheard when bombs started to fall:

"Hug the wall," said the first man.

FIRE EMPLOYEES PAY IS RULED ON

Departments Have No Right To Advance Salaries, State Says

BATON ROUGE, Sept. 14.—(P)—State departments have no right to give dismissal pay to employees for days not actually worked, even if the employees are discharged in a patronage shakeup, an opinion given by the office of Attorney General Eugene Stanley held today.

The opinion was rendered by Bertrand I. Cahn, second assistant attorney-general, on a request as to the legality of giving dismissal pay of two weeks for employees "discharged for no reason" of their own, discharged by reason of being replaced by new employees of the present administration.

In a group of opinions relative to the dual officeholding laws, the attorney-general's office held:

A coroner may be a member of a municipal board of health and of the parish board of health provided he receives no pay for his board membership.

There is no prohibition against one person holding two municipal offices of profit.

A postmaster or a school teacher may not serve as registrar of vital statistics.

A contract carrier of United States mail may serve as mayor of a municipality.

The attorney to assist the tax collector may serve as town attorney, town clerk or member of the board of aldermen, but may not serve as deputy tax collector and attorney for the town on a salary basis.

The attorney general's office held that the parish coroner is ex-officio parish health officer and that a police jury cannot designate any other person as parish health officer. It also held that the police jury could contract with the coroner on a salary basis for the performance of all the duties of coroner and parish physician.

OFFICIAL KILLED IN N. O. MYSTERY

President Of Plaquemines Board Dies In Hospital After Attack

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 14.—(P)—Discrediting a robbery theory, police here today sought to unravel the mysterious death from a bullet wound of Ursin Anardi, president of the Lake Borgne Basin Levee Board of Plaquemines parish.

Detective George Dillman said Anardi, 32-year-old Plaquemines parish official who maintained a residence in New Orleans, had $1,161, probably a week's board payroll money, on his person when he was taken to Charity hospital with a bullet wound in the cheek.

Anardi told police two men fired on him without warning when he stopped his car at the intersection of Royal street and Esplanade avenue on the fringe of the French Quarter for a traffic signal at 9:30 p.m. Friday night. He died three hours later in the hospital.

Anardi in his dying statement said the men demanded to know where he was going and that he told them he was going to the French Market to get some coffee. One of the men pulled a pistol and fired, then both fled, Anardi said.

JAMES BROTHERS GETS AIR LICENSE

Flight Instructor For CAA Presents Local Youth With Papers

Nineteen-year-old James Brothers, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. K. Brothers, 1206 North Fifth street, was perhaps the happiest boy in Monroe the past week when Leroy Severence, flight instructor for the Civil Aeronautics Authority training program, handed him his well-earned private pilot license.

Brothers, therefore, has the honor of being the first student to merit a private license and the privilege of piloting passengers.

His first passenger was his chubby little brother Sam, 11, red-thatched, freckled, and blue-eyed, who, immediately before he accompanied his brother on a flying trip over the city, was asked if he had flown before. He looked at his questioner, gulped and blurted, "N-no sir."

Brothers said that Sam used to accompany him to Selman Field at 5:30 in the morning to watch him fly, and that "he is just as interested in flying as I am."

One day while Brothers was "soaring through the ether," Sam looked longingly at the tiny Cub monoplane and remarked, "It just kills me to see James flying that plane up there, while I'm not able to."

The young pilot passed the required tests three weeks ago, but it was not until the past week that he received his license, however.

He studied electrical engineering for two years at Louisiana Tech, and this past summer he worked for M. Kaplan and Sons, machinery. Brothers said that he has always been interested in flying, but that he had flown very little before he enrolled in the CAA course.

And now that he has his private license, what about the future? Brothers said that provided he passes the physical examination, he will enroll in the CAA advanced flying school. Once this is accomplished he will carry out one of two objectives he has in mind.

He will either work for an instructor's rating and become a flight instructor, or he will train at Randolph Field, and later enter the field of commercial aviation.

However, Brothers said he will worry about that later. At present he's concerned about the physical examination he has to pass to enter the advanced flying course. He can decide later, he said, whether he wants to be a flight instructor or a commercial pilot.

BERLIN, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Franz Petr, 23, a Czech, was beheaded today for the slaying of German Police Sergeant Wilhelm Kniest on June 7, 1939, at Kladno, Bohemia.

Carl Doeppkin and Helmut Kremin also were beheaded for treasonable activity.

Ringling Brothers Circus Coming Here On Sept. 29

'Big Show,' Completely Air-Conditioned, To Show In West Monroe

From his office on the No. 1 advertising car of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, the contracting press agent, Allen J. Lester, visited the newspapers today bearing the tidings that the big show will exhibit in West Monroe, Sunday, Sept. 29, at Cypress and Travis streets, with the world's largest big top in solid blue canvas, its interior again restyled, streamlined and effectively air-conditioned.

The press man declares that the circus this year has the largest number of newly imported European stars and features it has ever presented to the American public, and these are headed by two sensational offerings—the new opening spectacle, "The Return of Marco Polo," created and costumed in Paris by Max Weldy, famed designer of the Folies Bergere productions, at a cost of over $80,000; and Europe's great Alfred Court, with his three renowned mixed groups of performing Polar bears, Bengal tigers, lions, Abyssinian lions, black leopards and panthers, Siberian snow leopards, spotted leopards, pumas, cougars, black jaguars and Great Dane dogs. Lester states that these outstanding attractions have been received in the cities played so far with tremendous enthusiasm.

The horse numbers of the performance are also terrific, the press agent avers, because Europe's foremost horsemen—Roberto de Vasconcellos and Los Azevedas, with their famous dressage and liberty horses—are also making their first appearances on this continent. The show's famous blue grass four year olds—70 of them—are again featured in liberty and high school work with the European stars.

There are scores of other new European tonight acts. Lester adds, among them the fabulous Rola Rola, Elly Ardely, the Akimotos, the great Truzzi, Adrianna and Charley and Tanita Ikao, all aerial and acrobatic thrill and novelty troupes. Other displays are headed by the Riding Cristianis, the three Flying Concello troupes, with Antoinette, only girl triple somersaulter; the famous Yacopi troupes, springboard somersaulters; Hubert Castle, wizard of the tight wire; Al Powell, sensational aerial contortionistic star, and the Aerial Rooneys. There are 800 eminent performers.

The performances begin at 2:15 and 8:15 p.m., with the doors open at 1 and 7 p.m., to permit public inspection of the world's largest traveling menagerie, including Gargantua the Great, giant gorilla, and the hundreds of beautiful steeds in the new horse fair tent adjoining it.

Washington County Chamber of Commerce have been advocating a bridge here for more than 20 years.

One of the most tireless workers was John A. Fox, secretary-manager of the Washington County Chamber of Commerce. Results became apparent after Arkansas and Mississippi organized bridge associations in 1937.

The following year the Mississippi Legislature passed an act authorizing the construction of the bridge. The Mississippi and Arkansas highway departments then made available $25,000 to cover the cost of surveying the site, drawing plans and estimating the cost.

Speakers scheduled include Senator Clyde E. Byrd, El Dorado, Ark., president of Arkansas United States 82 Highway and Bridge Association; W. R. French, Indianola, Miss., president of the Mississippi United States 82 Highway and Bridge Association; Frank Ahlgren, editor of the Memphis Commercial-Appeal, and George Healy, managing editor of the New Orleans Times-Picayune.

Governor Bailey will crown "Miss Mississippi" and Governor Johnson "Miss Arkansas." The former was selected in Washington county, Miss., and the latter in Chicot county, Ark.

NEW RIVER SPAN OPENS TUESDAY

Governors Bailey, Johnson To Take Part In Ceremonies

GREENVILLE, Miss., Sept. 14.—(AP)—A dream of more than 20 years will be realized Tuesday when the huge bridge across the Mississippi river here is officially opened as the fourth span across the lower reaches of the father of waters.

Next week, on September 26, a fifth structure will be opened at Natchez, downstream, connecting that city with Vidalia, La. Other bridges are now in operation at New Orleans, Baton Rouge and Vicksburg.

The span here cost approximately $4,477,000, most of which was put up by the federal government. Sponsors expect to retire the debt by tolls. Automobiles crossing the bridge will be charged $1 and passengers other than the driver 20 cents each.

An elaborate program has been scheduled, including addresses by Governor Paul B. Johnson, Mississippi, and Carl E. Bailey, Arkansas.

Mayor Milton Smith is in charge of the program. He, as mayor, is ex-officio head of the city council, which is the agency sponsoring the structure connecting Greenville and Lake Village, Ark.

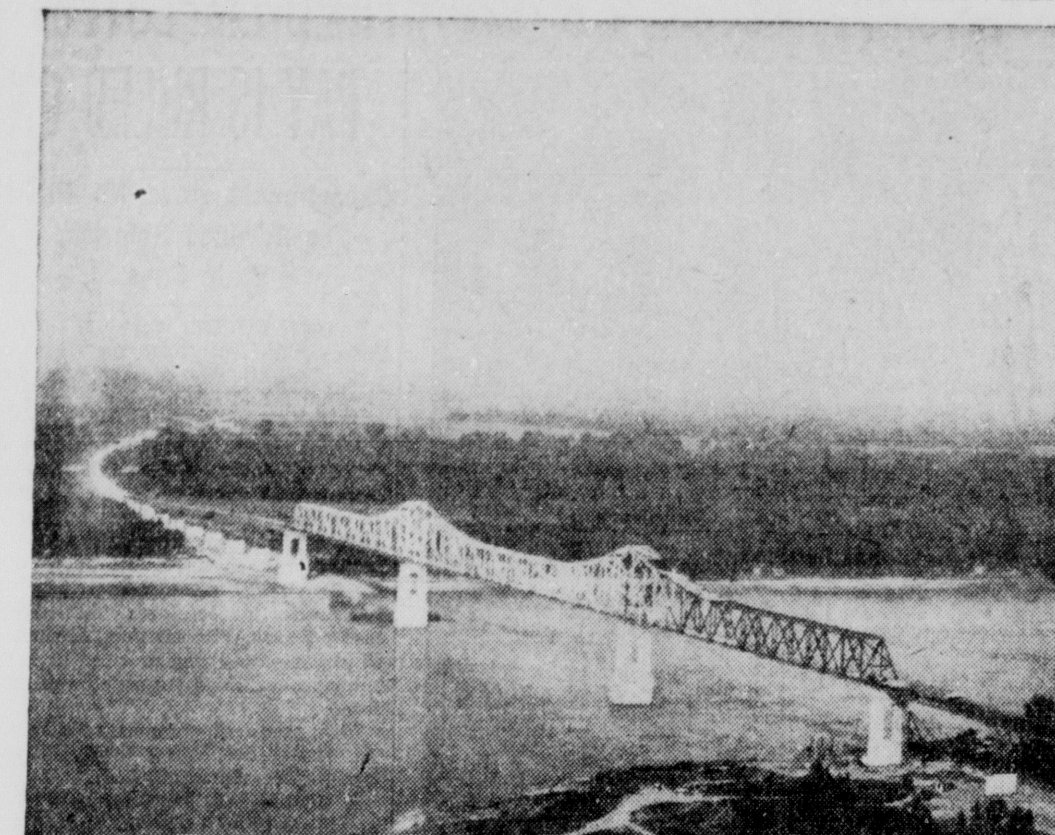

A ribbon across the 24-foot roadway will be cut by Mildred Maury McGee, young granddaughter of Congressman Ben G. Humphreys, in whose honor the bridge will be dedicated.

Surpass Figure For Last Year, Registrar Norton Announces

Registration figures announced Saturday noon at Northeast Junior College had reached the 620 mark as against an enrollment of 560 students for the first Monday last year. Indications point to a probable total of 650 by the end of next week, according to L. M. Norton, registrar.

Increase in number of students is greatly influenced by the addition of two new departments and many courses, he stated.

New courses in agriculture, home economics, art, commerce, and aviation are proving popular.

Enrollment in commerce is larger than ever. J. T. Johnson, head of the department, announced that 160 had registered for commercial work; approximately 137 were in the department last year.

Students have until October 5 to register for credit.

In addition to regular class work next week, plans are getting under way for freshman days scheduled Thursday and Friday. A committee of

SCALISE CONVICTED IN ALLEGED THEFTS

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—(AP)—George Scalise, former president of the Building Service Employees' International Union (A. F. L.), was convicted early today on five counts of an indictment accusing him of stealing $9,662.27 of the union's funds.

A general sessions court jury, after deliberating for 17 and three-quarter hours, reported convictions on four counts of third degree forgery and on one count of grand larceny. The jury could not agree on five remaining counts of grand larceny.

Scalise faces a maximum sentence of five years on each forgery count and 10 years on the grand larceny charge.

Originally the indictment contained 60 counts, but the number was reduced to 10 during the trial.

INDUSTRY HEADS FOR NEW MARKS

'Speed Up' Plans For Defense Production Is Held Responsible

By Frederick Gardner
NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Government "speed up" plans for defense production and a big boost in automobile assemblies prodded industry this week on its march toward new records.

The great backlog of orders previously accumulated in war industries was augmented by naval contracts for 200 ships costing $3,861,033,312. The war department authorized numerous companies to proceed with plant expansion for defense needs.

Steel, construction, machine-making and other heavy industries quickly regained momentum lost in the Labor day curtailments. General activity in these fields was at the highest September levels since 1929.

Steering into a faster speed on the assembly of new models, the motor industry jumped output to 63,240 units from 39,665 the previous week, and 42,445 in the like 1939 week, trade sources estimated.

Steel mills raised production schedules to the highest this year, more than recovering the drop in Labor day shutdowns. The steel operating rate went to 91.9 per cent of capacity from 82.5 the previous week.

Rising with the quickened post-Labor day upturn in heavy industry, The Associated Press index of industrial activity came close to duplicating the peak on the initial war upswing of business last autumn. The index climbed to 111 per cent of the 1929-30 level compared with 109.8 the previous week and 98 a year ago.

Industrial barometers have been climbing since May, pausing in July and early August, then showing renewed vigor as arms spending increased and factory expansion plans moved out of the blue print stage.

At the rate war industry enlargement was going ahead, steel men and builders counted on further gains before the autumn stimulus to activity waned. Many factories were at or near capacity, giving business managers incentive to consider new facilities to augment output.

The largest run of corporate financing since the Nazi invasion of the low countries last spring encouraged business circles to look to the capital markets for needed funds. Some of the capital was intended for increase of war industry facilities, although government funds so far have been financing most of the new defense plants.

ADVISES BRITISH TO STOP CONFLICT

London Has Choice Between Fates Of Warsaw, Paris And Peace

By Louis P. Lochner
BERLIN, Sept. 14.—(AP)—A well-informed German source said today London still has a choice between the fates of Warsaw and Paris. Unless London capitulates (as Paris did), he asserted, bomb attacks will continue unabated as they did in the devastation of Warsaw.

"The attack on London was undertaken as a measure of retaliation for months of planless bombing of German civilians and non-military objects by the British," this source insisted. "The British apparently now think because they haven't bombed Germany in the past two nights we are, therefore, quits. They apparently look at it like a football match where an error on one side is evened up by an error on the other."

"You can't figure human values that way. One German life may be worth 10 British lives and more. The fact is the German people were changed by continuing British attacks and now the German people's air force is giving its reply. If the British haven't been over here in the past two nights it is not because they didn't try, but because they couldn't."

"General weather and 'general' fog, allegedly England's powerful allies, are proving to be the British' big enemies. While I don't claim no more British planes will reach Germany, I do say they can't come over in large formations."

This source said a civilian withdrawal from London would simply make things worse for the city's people, who then would be exposed to hunger, rain and cold.

"Evacuation is plain murder," the source declared. "The area around the capital, he said, was industrial and contained numerous military objectives."

"We decline to accept the guilt for what is now happening in London," he continued. "England declared war because we brought Danzig back into the Reich. Her government made the worst mistake any military leadership can make, namely, in underestimating the enemy's possibilities and overestimating its own."

"The British government has the possibility of saving London, even now after 5,000 lives already have been lost, from the fate of Warsaw. The German air force will continue its relentless attacks unless the British government acts."

Ten states have inaugurated educational programs for rural highway pedestrians.

CHURCHES

ASSEMBLY OF GOD

Cypress And Crosley Streets
West Monroe

E. L. Tanner, Pastor

Tonight will be the last of the prophetic messages by Rev. W. M. McCafferty of Fort Worth, Tex. These messages have been inspirational and educational and those who have not heard him the past two weeks should take advantage of the opportunity of hearing him at both services today. The subject for the morning service will be "The More Excellent Way" and for the evening service he will speak on "Swords and Plowshares." All services will be held at the usual hours beginning with Sunday school at 9:45 a.m. with Superintendent S. W. Hamilton in charge, morning devotion at 11:00 a.m., evening service 7:30 p.m.

We did not quite reach our goal of 325 last Sunday in Sunday school but we are expecting to exceed this number today and extend an invitation to everyone who does not attend other Sunday schools to meet with us. You will enjoy the Bible lessons we are studying; also the Christian fellowship of a growing Sunday school. Visitors and strangers in the city always receive a cordial welcome.

D. C. Black, Pastor's Associate

We will do our best to seat the crowds that will come to hear Chester Swor for his two messages Sunday, 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. The auditorium was taxed almost to its utmost capacity during the week night services; what will be the crowds Sunday morning and Sunday night?

With the emphasis and impetus of the services this week, we should go even beyond the 1,000 attendance mark in Sunday School. As you come you will of course come prepared to make your free-will offering to Chester for his marvelous ministry. Then you will not overlook the tremendous obligations that our building program impose on our church. We have never failed, and you have never failed us, and we know that you are going to "keep on keeping on" until victory is ours.

Note the time for the evening services is changed. The B. T. U. and Brotherhood will meet at 6:15 so the evening worship can begin at 7:30. Our souls fairly thrill at the progress on the new building and we are hardly wait to get into it! Praise the Lord for His goodness!

CALVARY BAPTIST CHURCH

812 Mississippi Street
Rev. J. J. Brooks, Pastor

Max Braswell, Choir Director

Attend Sunday School at 9:45 this morning. The Pastor's Message for this morning will be the "Universal Anthem" with text from Psalms 137:4. Then, from the text found in Galatians 6:14, the subject "On The Cross" will be used for the evening service.

Were you in Sunday School and Training Union last Sunday?—You are neglecting your own development when you miss. If a man does not attend Brotherhood Tuesday evening at 7:45 he must receive a great benefit from the reason for his absence if he desires to make the most of the evening spent.

The splendid attendance at the mid-week prayer service at 7:30 Wednesday evening is most encouraging; nevertheless, we are still urging our members and friends to meet at this time each week to worship and pray.

The Sunday school will begin today at 9:45 a.m. and close at 10:40 a.m. All adult and young people meeting at the Lida Benton school and all the children's classes meeting in the church through the intermediate ages. Now that it is time for school to begin let us also begin our Sunday school work with renewed interest; bring all your friends and be on time with a good grade.

The pastor's sermon subjects for the day are "The Wise and the Foolish," at the morning service, and "Danger in Delay," at the evening message, "Danger in Delay."

Ours is the day of quick action, and if we are to move so speedily every precaution must be made against making grave mistakes. We must share with the poet these great words if we are to be sure:

All my trust on Thee is staid,
All my help from Thee I bring;
Cover my defenceless head,
With the shadow of thy wing.

The Training Union meets at 6:45 p.m. All our members are expected to be present and have part in this great work. There is a union for all ages and a fine program will be given in each department. All the friends are cordially invited to visit the unions and to share the blessing.

An added feature to the services for the day will be the presence of the new baby grand piano. This will add to the efficiency of the music as well as to be a joy to us who so long have desired to have such an instrument. Invite your neighbors and let us have the finest congregational singing ever.

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "All substance, intelligence, wisdom, being, immortality, cause, and effect belong to God" (p. 275).

Sunday is the 17th Sunday after Trinity. Services are as follows: The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated at 7:30 a.m., and morning prayer will be read at 9:30 a.m. These are the only services for this Sunday. Beginning next Sunday, September 22nd, we resume our usual schedule of hours for services, namely, 7:30 a.m. and 10:45 a.m. The Church School will resume its sessions, meeting at 9:30 a.m. Meditation: "How the call came." Read Exodus, Chapter 3, verses 1 to 15. How often when we find God wants us to do a certain task, we shrink from the responsibility, as Moses did, and ask: "Who am I that I should do this thing?" We think we haven't enough influence to do it successfully; or not enough money; or (like Moses) we aren't eloquent enough. If God really wants us to do this thing, and we are willing to let Him use us, we will come to realize, as Moses did, that it doesn't much matter "who we are." The big thing that matters is who God is, and whether we are offering Him our whole being, holding nothing back. The answer to Moses' distrust of himself was: "Certainly I will be with thee." The Rector will hold service this Sunday in St. David's, Rayville, service at 10:30 a.m. The service will consist of Morning Prayer and Sermon. Wednesday, Friday and Saturday of the week of the 15th are Ember days, and Saturday is also St. Matthew's day. The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated on Wednesday at 9 a.m. and Saturday at 7:30 a.m. "Lost we forget!" The Church is open daily from 7:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. Come in rest, pray, give thanks, meditate. You are welcome.

STONE AVENUE METHODIST CHURCH

I. L. Yeager, Pastor

An aged man, whose sight was very nearly gone, was one day on "the Isle of Safety" in Piccadilly Circus, London, waiting with some anxiety for an opportunity to pass through the unceasing traffic. A young man approached and offered his guidance, and this was thankfully accepted.

The roadway being crossed, the dim eyes of the old man observed that several hats were raised as the rescuer, having guided him across the pavement, passed quietly into the throng of passing people. Some one from the crowd approached the man and asked if he knew who had helped him across the thoroughfare. "No, but he was exceedingly kind to me," was the reply. He was greatly surprised when he learned that it was the amiable and thoughtful Prince of Wales who had done this kindly service.

Not only will the Prince of Peace guide us "across" the crowded ways of life, but will accompany us over all the way. "Lo, I am with you always," said He.

Friends, we are not the only church preaching and living the truth, but as one among many, we invite you to come with us this Lord's day in our regular worship services. Please remain for the morning worship service. Let all the teachers remain and impress the children with the importance of cultivating the habit of attending the regular services of the church. CHAPTER I

It was utter loneliness that drew Sue Mary to the fringes of the crowd. That feeling had been growing more and more strongly these past weeks and now these people—most of them young, her own age—attracted her like a magnet.

She wished desperately that she could speak to some of them. They were boys and girls who looked like those back home; those she had grown up with and gone to school with, and with whom she had played and laughed.

That was what she missed so horribly now. But she couldn't speak to any one of these Embarrassment and self-consciousness held her back. She could merely stand and listen and look at their faces, and wonder what they did when they weren't working.

She was to meet Joe here, in the little park in an hour, but the prospect of sitting in her room until that time had been unbearable. Then, too, here in the park the summer heat was less stifling than under the hot roof of her boarding house. Just the sound of the faint breeze rustling the leaves of the dust-covered park trees was a relief.

The crowd wasn't noisy, but occasionally questions were asked. The man standing on the park bench gained renewed energy and enthusiasm each time some one interrupted him. Sue Mary wondered how he found the heart to talk so loudly and so long in the summer heat.

His words disturbed her even though they really didn't penetrate her consciousness. There were so many things to disturb one's peace of mind now. The world seemed filled with confusion and so she had given up trying to read about all the horrors abroad and troubles at home.

Words filtered through the heat into her consciousness. Meaningless words, to her. "Imperialistic oppression to rob the people of their cherished liberties"—"Gold—profits—that's what they are interested in." The man's voice was grating, shrill.

"Who pays the bill?" shouted a dark-haired young man, standing near Sue Mary. She stared at his intense, young face.

"That, comrade, is a good question," the speaker answered, while the crowd roared approval. His answer was lost in the shouting. Sue Mary tried to shut out the din.

The park shimmered in the heat. The faces of the boys and girls around her looked strained and unreal. Was there any sense in what this man was shouting?

Everyone knew that affairs in Europe were critical, that Americans must face facts. A country worth living in was worth fighting for. You had to defend your country.

Why, then, was this man screaming? Why were these boys and girls so distraught?

Sue Mary couldn't understand it. These young people weren't like her friends at home. Not inside; not in their minds. There was no sign of loneliness in their faces—only desperate purposefulness.

She wished Joe would come, so that they could go to the little casino in the park for dinner. If it weren't for Joe she wouldn't know what to do with these free days. A five-day week; time to rest, time to play. But for a lonely girl the hours dragged painfully.

"A whole day off and believe me I'll make it a real one," Kitty Lynn had exclaimed, excitedly, when the notice had gone up in the office. "This breathing spell will give me a new lease on life."

Sue Mary had listened to the announcement of a free Tuesday with a sense of disbelief. "You won't have to report on Tuesdays after this, Miss Jefferson," she had been told.

A free day—she stared at Kitty and Babs Fleming while they chattered gleefully about the things they could do with the holiday.

She didn't know what she could do on her day off. All she had been able to say when Miss Grant, her boss, told of the plan, was a trite "How nice."

She had tried to be like Miss Grant when she first came to work for Clark, Kenny, Malone and Clark. Miss Grant was the young business woman type: sophisticated, competent, able.

The office itself had been thrilling those first weeks when she had been fortunate enough to secure the job. Before that, back in Springville, she had finished high school, had two years of business college, and worked in two offices, before coming to Westport in a sudden desire to make something of her life.

Her letters back to her mother and aunt had been sprinkled with adventures.

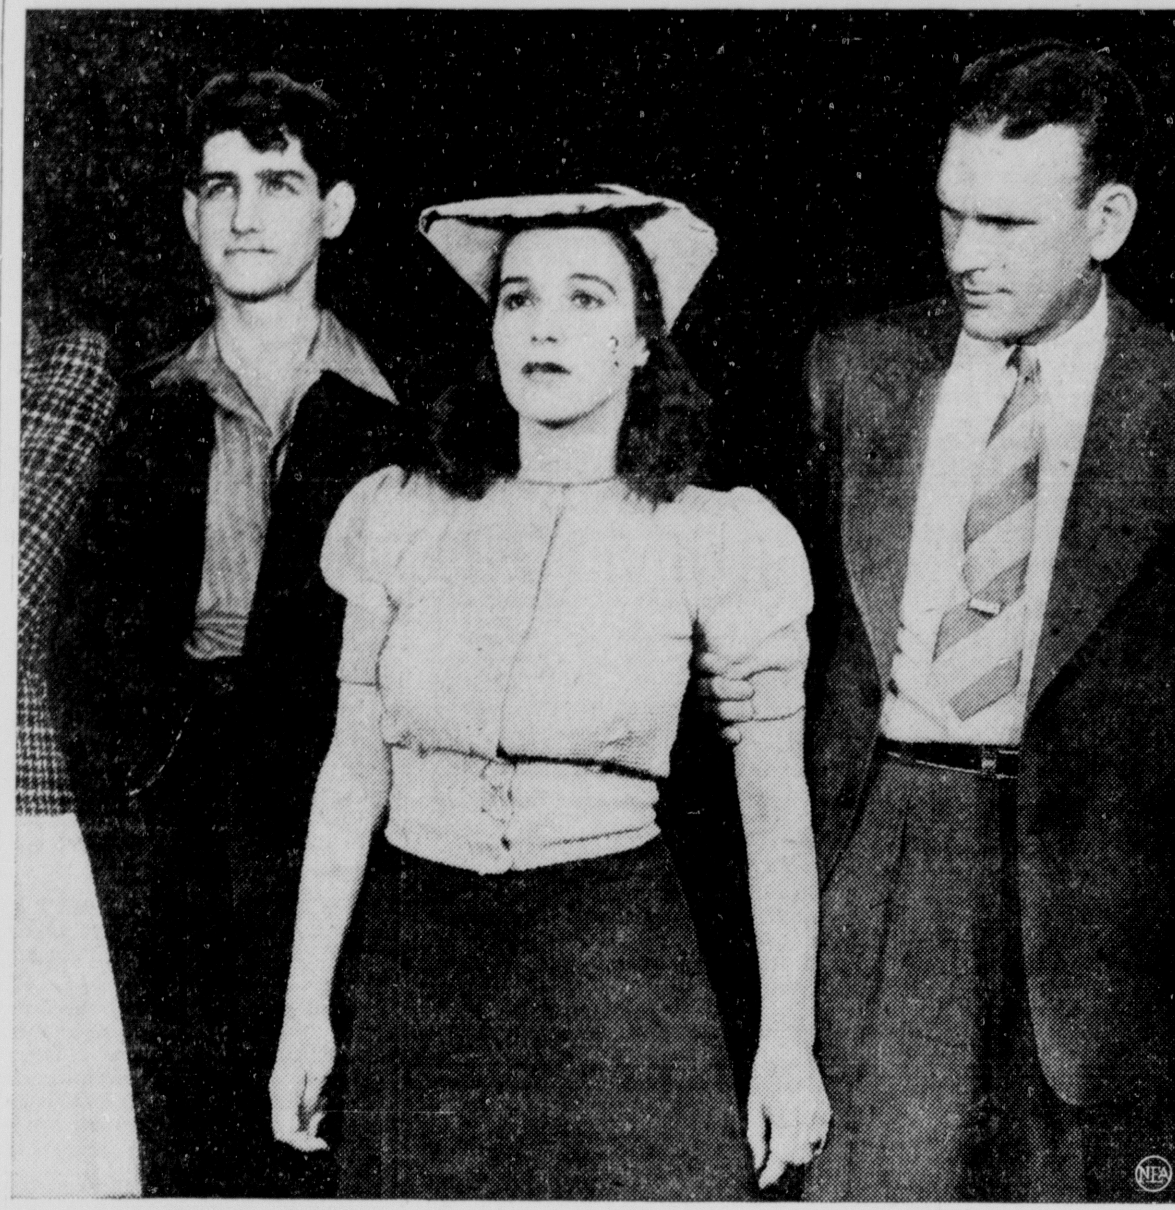

Everything was an adventure, then, though. It was fun to live with the Roynys; with Alice, whom Sue Mary had always adored as a younger sister loves an older one; fun to live in a home filled with babies and laughter.

Alice and Frank had welcomed Sue Mary and there had never been any of the homesickness she feared.

"Homesick—good heavens, you won't have time," Alice had prophesied. "You have a job and this is your home. I can't imagine anyone being lonely here."

And she never had been. And then, of course, there was Joe. Sue Mary had been in Westport only two weeks when Frank brought Joe home one evening.

"We're buddies," he told Sue Mary when he presented the big, blond, blue-eyed young man. "Joe Stefanski is one swell guy. And it's not all brown, either. He's got brains. We

The speaker's meaningless words dinned into her ears. Sue Mary was interested, but puzzled. Then Joe's hand was on her arm. "You're listening to a soapbox orator. . . . Crackpots! Reds! Come on!" "I don't understand, Joe. Our country's safe, isn't it? We're well off, aren't we?"

evenings together as a matter of course. Joe had ambition.

He had worked his way through engineering college, but now he worked beside men who had done well to finish the eighth grade; men who spoke strange languages; who came from countries scattered through Europe. But Joe was glad for the chance to work.

"I'm not kicking," he would say to Sue Mary, holding her fingers in his own big, work-calloused hand. "It's all experience. I've got some ideas I'm developing."

She knew he cared for her. She cared for Joe, too, only somehow she felt there should be more fun, more excitement, more glamor in their relationship.

No, life hadn't been exciting, but it had been calm, satisfying, pleasant. And then the Roynys had moved. Work at the plant had been slow and Frank's department had started cutting down. Four days, three days, sometimes only two. Frank had fretted and Alice had worried. Bills piled up. Just when things were darkest, Frank heard of a job back in Springville.

"It's not much, but it's steady, and a man with a family needs that," he said.

In a short week's time they were gone, and Sue Mary had moved to a boarding house nearer her work. There, in her little room with faded cretonne curtains, the single bed with its wrinkled candlewick spread, the window overlooking the sooty street, she had tried to readjust herself.

Then she knew what homesickness was; then it was, that she missed the comfort of having those whom she loved about her in the evenings when she came home from work. Somehow she managed to overcome the hideous loneliness that overwhelmed her, when she climbed the stairs and entered the room for the endless hours of evenings and nights.

Looking back now her life didn't seem very thrilling; not as thrilling as youth should expect. That inner discontent, that uncertainty of the future, hung heavy over her.

She came back to reality. Joe's hand was on her arm.

"It's a wonder I ever found you," he said, grinning down at her. "Who'd expect you to be listening to a soapbox orator along with a bunch of long-hairs."

"I wasn't listening, Joe, just thinking. What do you mean—'long-hairs'?" "Well, crackpots, Reds. Guys like that one—" Joe went on, pointing to the speaker, whose words still beat around them, "oughtta be thrown in the klink. Only this is a free country, and everyone has a right to say what he pleases. But guys like that," he shook his head in disgust. "They're troublemakers. Fools—"

"An' you're a wise guy, I s'pose, aren't you, pal?" the question came from a man nearby.

Joe stared at him coldly. "Wise enough to get the pitch on this," he said. "I'm an average American, and I don't need the kind of help you guys give. Yeah, an' I'm a union man, too. Furthermore, if I have to fight for this country, I'll do it. And I won't bellyache about the government."

He took Sue Mary's arm and drew her away. She was troubled.

"I don't understand them, Joe. Most of them are young; like us. But why are they so—so excited—so angry at things. The people we know aren't like that. This country is safe, isn't it? We're well off, aren't we? Or are we blind? I don't understand it."

"They're not our kind of people, dear. To hell with them. They don't know when they're well off. But let's not talk about them. We'll have dinner and talk about us."

Swinging hands, they went down the walk away from the crowd, with the speaker's voice growing fainter in the distance. The aching loneliness, the troubled doubts, the uncertainty of the future seemed unimportant now.

Color Booklet May Be Borrowed To Study

The Sherwin-Williams store is color headquarters as well as paint headquarters.

Persons planning to build a new home or redecorate their present home may obtain free of charge a new style service guide from the Sherwin-Williams Paint Co., 109 Catalpa, Sam Campbell Jr., manager, announced last week.

Mr. Campbell said the style book will be offered as a lending service to assist in making color selections. "We got the idea for this lending service from our customers," Mr. Campbell said. "So many wanted to borrow it, we decided to get more copies and make the service available to everyone."

The guide consists of over 100 full color Kodachrome photographs, 16x18, for both interior and exterior combinations, of beautiful homes all over the United States.

The guide book can now be borrowed for a couple of days. One can take it home—it will even be delivered—so it may be shown to the entire family and plan the decorating to suit everyone.

Heretofore to see this guide one had to go to the store or have a painting contractor show it. Now it may be borrowed by telephoning 4545.

In presenting the new service the Sherwin-Williams Co. also will offer the expert advice of its representatives if desired, to those interested in decorations.

The guide is being offered exclusively by Sherwin-Williams stores and their dealers throughout the country and already it has aided many persons in selecting the proper colors for decorating new and old homes alike.

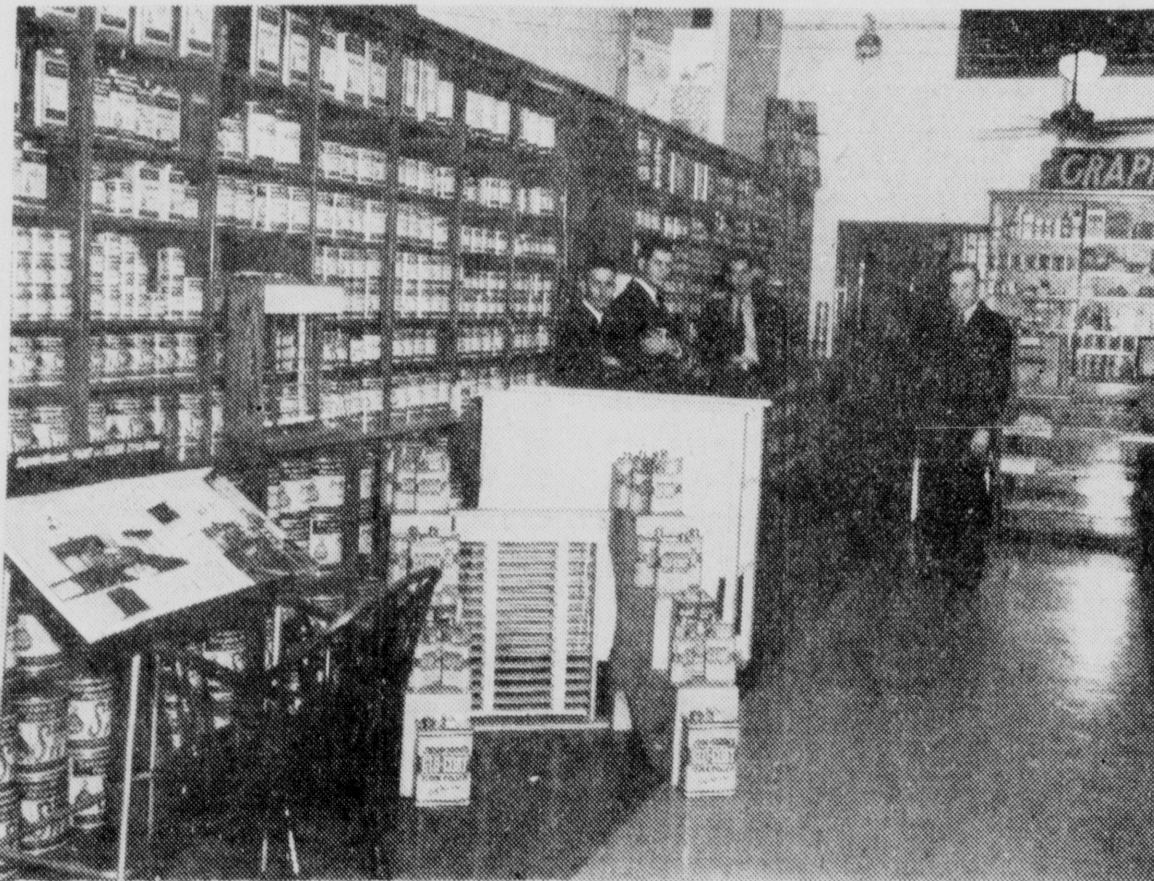

Several pictures from this guide have been used as examples of fine color photography in the recent quarterly issue of U. S. Camera.

Machine Is Purchased To Correct Steering

Shorty's Body Works Can Now Correct Bent Frames

Purchase last week of two intricate pieces of equipment by L. O. (Shorty) Wilkinson, manager of Shorty's Body

Shop and Garage, 309 Washington, makes his establishment one of the best equipped in the city to handle all types of automotive repair work, he said last week.

Persons troubled with hard steering, shimmying or other difficulties with their automobile wheels may have it quickly remedied with the new device purchased for this purpose. The machine will take the shimmy out of a car at either low or high speed and will adjust the steering of the car perfectly, Mr. Wilkinson said.

"We want the people to come in for a free inspection on wheel balance," Mr. Wilkinson said. "With our new device we can tell them exactly what is wrong with their steering and have it fixed in a 'jiffy,' he said. The other new device is a Bear

Frame and Axle alignment designed to straighten and take the kinks out of the automobile frame. If your automobile has received any hard jolts or has been in a minor accident this machine will straighten out the frame in no time at all and will help for smoother driving.

This special work is in addition to the other automotive work being done at Shorty's garage which includes repair work, painting, and general body work. No matter what the trouble is with your car, at this garage you will find the equipment and expert mechanics to remedy your trouble.

JAPANESE BOMBERS HIT CANADIAN SHIP

TOKYO, Sept. 14.—(P)—The Japanese admiralty announced tonight that naval fliers accidentally dropped a test bomb on the Canadian liner Empress of Asia, injuring four Chinese crewmen.

The navy at once sent surgeons and official representatives abroad to give what assistance they could and express prompt apologies.

The announcement said there was no other damage. The incident occurred while a naval squadron was in bombing practice off Oshima island.

The purser of the liner, which sailed tonight for Vancouver, B. C., her home port, said there was no structural damage to the 16,900-ton ship. The Associated Press spoke to him by radio telephone, but he would give no further details.

YANKEES SLAUGHTER DETROIT TIGERS, 16-7

BOSTON RED SOX TROUNCE INDIANS TO TIGHTEN RACE

Chicago White Sox Rack Up Sixth Straight Victory, 6 To 3

DETROIT, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Yankee power, dormant for three games, exploded with old-fashioned violence today as the world champions slaughtered the Detroit Tigers, 16 to 7, before a crowd of 56,697 fans.

The victory lifted the world champions to within two games of first place in their belated quest for a fifth straight American League pennant. Despite the defeat, the Tigers stayed on top of the standings by a half-game, inasmuch as the Boston Red Sox moved down the second-place Cleveland Indians, 6 to 1.

Almost every hit meant a run today as the Yankees combed six Detroit pitchers for 16 safeties that included two homers by Joe Gordon and one by Bill Dickey. All of the Yankee scoring was confined to the space of four innings, the victors getting five runs in the fourth and seventh innings, four in the sixth and two in the fifth.

The Tigers took a 4-to-0 lead in the opening inning when they chased Spurgeon Chandler and looked to be on the road to another victory before the first Yankee outbreak in the fourth. Louie (Buck) Newsom, who had faced but nine batters in the first three frames, lost his stuff without warning and before the fourth was over Gordon and Dickey had homered, George Selkirk had tripled and Joe DiMaggio had singled, and the Yanks were on the road to triumph.

Newsom stayed on the hill until two were out in the fifth, yielding two more runs, one of them Gordon's second home of the afternoon. Archie McKain, Tom Seals, Bob Uhle, Paul Trout and Clay Smith followed Newsom in order and of the quintet only Smith was more than slightly annoying to the Yankee batsmen.

DiMaggio, fighting to win the American League batting title, furthered his cause with four blows in five trips and drove home three runs.

Ripple's Homer Gives Reds 3 To 2 Victory Over Giants

PROMOTER KALLIO SIGNS TOP-NOTCH WRESTLING CARD

Bob Corby, Newcomer, Battles Rod Fenton In Semi-final Thursday

Buck Davidson, the Terre Haute, Ind., neck-twister, will try to tame the rough and tough Gorilla Grubmeyer in the main event at the Monroe wrestling arena Thursday night.

A newcomer, Bob Corby, Atlanta, Ga., will attempt to do the same thing with another tough customer, Rod Fenton, the Canadian grappler.

Davidson wrestled in the Monroe arena a couple of weeks ago, when he was participant in the battle royal and won a semi-final berth on the regular card by outlasting Rex Mobley.

He went on to defeat Butch Martin, local boy, who referees most of the matches. The Terre Haute product mixes a little rough stuff in his wrestling, too, and will probably show an even greater amount against the junior light heavy champ.

The match will not be for Grubmeyer's belt. It will have a 90-minute time limit and be for the best two falls to win.

Corby, a youngster, has been campaigning in the Eastern rings and has made a big hit with the grapping fans in that section.

Fenton defeated the rough sailor boy, Tex Watkins, in his last appearance on the local mat and is trying to inveigle the Gorilla into a championship match with him, and therefore will be doing his best to beat the young wrestler star.

All in all, wrestling fans should see another top-notch card similar to the last week's bouts in which the Gorilla won from Yagui Joe and Becker downed Flash Clifford in a whirlwind bout that saw three falls in less than 30 minutes, one only two minutes in duration.

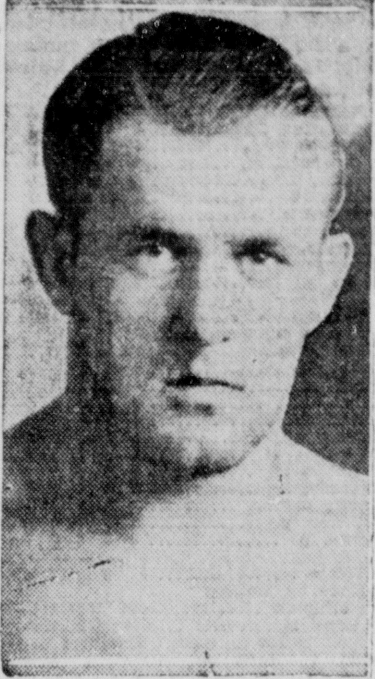

With both Corby, Fenton, and Davidson out after a chance at Grubmeyer's and Mobley's titles, the going in Thursday night's neck-twisting melees should remain at top speed all through the bouts. All four of the principals know the wrestling game to perfection and all use speed and agility in winning their matches.

FERRIDAY HIGH BULLDOGS SCHEDULE IS COMPLETED
FERRIDAY, Sept. 14.—(Special)—The schedule for 1940 has been completed for the Ferriday High school "Bulldogs" by Principal Hugh A. Bateman and Coach Charles Loomis is busy drilling his charges for the first tilt of the season to be played in Ferriday.

The Bulldogs are reported to be showing up well in the workouts and despite the loss of a number of veterans including the Fleming brothers, Hays and Gene, now trying out for the Louisiana Tech freshman team at Ruston, and Charles Yancey, who is out for the Mississippi State eleven, the local squad will be a potent one and one which will win the majority of its games, the mentor believes.

SMALL BUT MIGHTY
CHICAGO—Dominic Dallessandro, Cub's outfielder, is only 5 feet 6, but is the second tallest in a family of nine.

QUACHITA VALLEY FAIR SIGNS COMIC

Charlie Shultz, Son, Daughter, Burros, Bucking Ford Put On Acts

Charlie Shultz, world-famous clown, his fancy-riding son and daughter and, last but not least, his bucking Ford and trained burros, have been secured for the 1940 rodeo events at the Quachita Valley Fair, to be held October 9 to 13.

Charlie has convulsed many a circus and rodeo audience with his comic antics and the acts put on with his two gray burros. The clown runs the animals through a whole bag of tricks, including taking them riding in his bucking Ford.

The "bronco-acting act" is the hit of the show. One minute it will run with all the smoothness of a limousine, and the next will rear and growl, pop and explode.

Besides the special events that Charlie puts on with his troupe, his son and daughter display some fine and fancy horsemanship with a pair of white and a pair of black stallions.

The West Monroe police department is sponsoring the advance ticket sale for the rodeo events.

Director Ike Hamilton announced Saturday night that the roping calves for the event were already on hand and in fine shape.

Several world-famous cowboys will enter the events here, including Dick Johnson, the defending all-around champion of last year, Joe Fleming, Center, Tex., champion calf-roping and bull-dogger, who has entered the last three Madison Square Garden rodeos, and "Doc" and Dick Blackstone, who were among the top-notch performers in the 1939 rodeo.

Dixie Sports Huddle

By Romney Wheeler
ATLANTA, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Ohio State football fans are laughing fit to kill over the agonized moans at Duke, from whence young Mr. Dick Zimmerman, a better-than-average sophomore tackle, vanished a few days ago.

Wallace Wade and other Duke coaches promptly hollered "snatch" but the Ohioans insist that Zimmerman was just being "repaired" in his home being in Columbus (Ohio) to start with.

DOTS 'N' DASHES
In case you wondered what made him change his mind, Banks McFadden is said to have been promised a cool $7,500 for a season's gridiron galloping with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

And what does Wallace Wade (what, again?) think about the Duke-Tennessee game? . . . When sports-writer Jack Wade asked him, he replied: "We won't consider our season broken if we lose that game, and we won't consider it made if we win it. We usually lose a game or two." So now you know . . .

Sam Butz in the Jacksonville Times-Union: "And what has happened to the Southeastern mounted policeman, Commissioner Mike Conner? Did he have anything to do with Harry Parham of Tampa returning from Tennessee to the University of Florida? And if he did, will he please also send Maxwell Partain and Billy Bevis back to the land of sunshine?"

POST-SKIPS
Small wonder the Georgia alumni mention Frankie Sinkwich in a reverent tone. . . . The brilliant ball-toter sold Bulldog coaches on a Youngstown (Ohio) team-mate, George Poschner, who now is proving the answer to Wally Butts' prayer for a red-hot end.

BROOKLYN WINS DOUBLE HEADER FROM PIRATES

Twin Defeat Sends Pittsburgh Into Fourth Place Behind Cards

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—(AP)—A lusty home run by Jimmy Ripple in the ninth inning with one out and nobody on gave the league-leading Cincinnati Reds their 35th one-run decision today—a 3-2 win over the hapless New York Giants.

Hal Schumacher pitched a plucky game for the losers, going the route and allowing only seven hits, compared with the 11 the Giants got off Jim Turner. But Ripple's second homer of the year upset Schumacher's bid for victory.

Mel Ott did the best hitting of the day with a single and his 16th homer of the season, the latter tying the score at 1-all in the seventh.

PHILS BEAT CUBS
PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The power behind 39-year-old Sylvester Johnson's fast ball held the Chicago Cubs to five hits today as the Phils capitalized on a triple and homer for a 5 to 3 triumph.

With the bases loaded and his teammates trailing 2-0, Chuck Klein went to bat as a pinch hitter in the sixth and smashed out a three-bagger that was good for three runs. In the seventh, Danny Litwiler poked a homer with one on to put the game away.

Stan Hack drove in all the Chicago runs with two homers and a single.

The Yankees and the Red Sox teamed Saturday to throw the American league pennant chase into such a hopeless muddle that looks as though it won't be solved until the last game of the season.

The Yanks, mired in a three game losing streak, rose up in open revolt to smash the league leading Detroit Tigers by 16-7 while the Red Sox punched out a 6-1 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

That left the Tigers on top, a half game ahead of the Indians and only two games in front of the Yankees. The White Sox are in fourth place four and a half games out and the Red Sox are in fifth, just six games away from first place.

Both Cincinnati and the Dodgers won today, but the Dodgers won two while the Reds were nipping the Giants 3-2, and that made the Brooks almost mathematically certain of second place while cutting the Reds' lead to eight games, a half game closer than they were a day ago.

Lyons, Hurler Fans Never Boo, Will Be Feted Today

It'll Be A Heart-Tugging $5,000 Day For Veteran Sox Pitcher

By Charles Dunkley
CHICAGO, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Theodore Amar Lyons, pitching his 18th year for the Chicago White Sox, really is going to have a day for himself tomorrow, when admiring fans will honor him.

No usual suitcase presentation at home plate—it will be a heart-tugging, $5,000 day for this amazing hurler, now 39 years old and finishing one of the best seasons of his career.

The fans, by popular donation of dimes, will present him with a luxurious automobile. The ball club will come up with a check of $1,000 or more. His teammates will give him an autographed bat wrapped in foil.

While the day is to honor Ted—who will pitch the first game of a double header against Boston—two Lyonses will be spotlighted. Ted's father, A. F. Lyons, is coming up from Texas to see, for the first time, his famous son pitch a major league game.

No more popular player was ever in the major leagues. He is respected by his teammates, by opposing players and even by umpires, for Lyons has the reputation of never making a beef.

Ted lost his fast ball speed six years ago because of an ailing right arm, but courageously continued without complaint and regained some semblance of his oldtime zip only last year. He is regarded as one of the headiest pitchers in the majors.

Lyons never played with any other team, major or minor, since leaving Baylor University and joining the White Sox back in 1923. He has won 231 games, including a no-hitter against Boston in 1926. He has always been a good hitter, and a remarkable fielder, playing an entire season without an error. Of all the batters he's faced, he rates Al Simmons, now a player-coach with the Athletics, as the toughest. Always a great competitive player, he took pride in pitching to the tough ones and that went for Babe Ruth, Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker and the other great sluggers.

Lyons has always been willing to help other hurlers overcome pitching mistakes. Only this year when young

NEVILLE TIGERS IRON OUT KINKS

Tigers Meet Tri-State Catholic Grid Champs In Alexandria Friday

Neville's Tigers started back to work Saturday preparing for their first battle with a high school eleven, the Menard Memorial Eagles of Alexandria, Friday night on the Eagles' gridiron.

No injuries or cramp-ups were sustained by the Tigers in their contest with the Tech freshmen last week, in which the Tigers held the Bullpups scoreless for the first half.

Coach Percy Brown and his assistant, Bill Ruple, were well pleased with the defensive strength of the squad, but the passing defense was not as strong as it will have to be. Especially outstanding in the Tech game were Jack Trimble, right end, Doyne Demasterson on the other wing, and Guy Miller, diminutive halfback who calls plays, Lloyd Barham, sub pivot, also showed some sterling play, once intercepting a pass and running the ball down to the Tech 11-yard stripe, where the first half ended.

The Menard Memorial Eagles have a veteran team back including 15 lettermen, Brother Patrick, coach of the 1939 Tri-State Catholic title-holders, has high hopes of his squad turning in its best year since football has been played at the school.

Coach Brown announced that he would hold no scrimmage sessions this week, but would spend time polishing up the Tiger offense and pass defense. Coach Brown used 32 boys in the Tech game, while the Tech Mentors, Joe Aillet and Cecil Crowley used 24 players.

Roy Earl, first string wingman, who didn't get to see much action in the Tech scrap, will be ready to go at full speed for the Eagle-Tiger battle, but will have to step some to beat out Demasterson, who turned in a fine game last week. Demasterson has a nickname on the practice field, "Concrete," earned because of his determined play.

WALKER TUMBLES IN BATTING RACE

Dodgers' Hitting Star Skids To Eighth Place In One Week

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The bats who have held the National League batting leadership from week to week will tell you it's a lot easier to go there than to stay there.

Last week Dixie Walker, the Dodgers' dandy, was head and shoulders above the field, but this week he's in eighth place. A week earlier, "Bama Rowell" of the Bees skidded from first.

Up at the head of the class now is Johnny Cooney of the Boston Bees with a creditable .320. Within easy distance of him are Jim Gleason of the Cubs with .318 and Johnny Mize of the Cards and Schorsch Lombardi of the Reds, both boasting averages of .317.

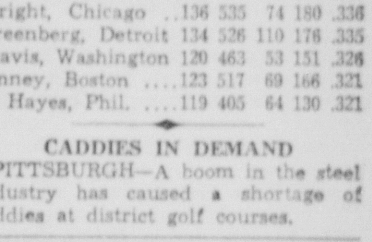

The American League race runs a lot smoother. Rip Radcliff of the Browns still is the No. 1 man, his .344 giving him the coveted position over such fence busters as Luke Appling of the White Sox and Joe DiMaggio of the Yankees, who are close behind at .341.

JUNIOR COLLEGE PREPS FOR FIRST TILT OF SEASON

Three Spinner-Backs Among Injuries Sustained By Malone's Gridders

son, Miss., here Friday night. The tilt will get under way at 8 o'clock.

Coach Jim Malone sent them through a tough scrimmage session Saturday, the next to last before the game, and announced after the work-out that he was pleased with the showing of the boys.

Only five members of the squad failed to take part in the scrimmage. "Bull" McKinney, tackle, "Rowboat" Wroten, Gerald White, and Cerey Frey, spinner backs, and Ray Young, guard were the injured squadmen.

White, the most seriously hurt of the bunch, is expected to be ready to see some action in the last scrimmage Tuesday afternoon. The others, troubled with minor injuries will be ready to go in full force by then.

As the "A" eleven lined up for the scrimmage, David Young and Ralph Taylor were at ends, Hal Hanson, co-captain, and Emmett Dunnington at tackles, Rudy Broussard and Paul Howell, guards, and Paul Landadeo, at the pivot. The backfield was composed of Jake Lively, quarter, Guy Seivers, tailback and signal caller, Co-captain "Dub" Taylor, right half, and Bill Abraham, full.

Hanson, Landadeo, and David Young were the line stars of the eleven, while Seivers' signal calling and Bill Abraham's off tackle smashing made them the standouts in the backfield.

The "B" team was composed of Cecil Cooper and Ed Ochs, ends, Irving Seidman and Willie Perkins, tackles, Joe Roshto and Pete Meek, guards, John Nicossia, center, Tobby Callido, quarter, Ollie Thayer, fullback, Joe Swanger, tailback, and Vaughan Payne on the wing. Alvin Fleming saw action as a replacement for Payne, while George Jones and Leo Lively played the end positions.

The work of Roshto, Ochs, Callido, Swanger, and Fleming were especially pleasing to the mentor.

Assistant Mentor Son Seago missed the practice session because of a scouting mission to south Louisiana to the Southwest-St. Mary's Rattlers game in Hammond. The Hammond eleven is one of the future opponents of the Indians.

Copiah-Lincoln's squad is coached by Farmer Johnson, ex-Knoxville, Tenn., high school mentor, who spent 11 years at that position and produced some of the strongest prep school teams in the state.

Coach Johnson for many years was depended upon by Major Bob Neyland to scout the Tennessee Volunteers' opposition.

Chapman Easily Takes National Amateur Golf Title

DUFF M'CULLOUGH DOWNED, 11 AND 9, BY SEASONED VET

Bobby Jones Supplanted As Second Most Decisive Winner

By Bill Boni
MAMARONECK, N. Y., Sept. 14.—(P)—They threw a tournament golfer in against a week-end golfer in the final of the National amateur championship today, and the result was a foregone conclusion after the first nine holes.

What was supposed to be a 36-hole final ended on the 27th green, with Duff McCullough, the week-end player, racing across the turf to shake the hand of Dick Chapman, the seasoned campaigner and now title-holder.

Chapman—Richard Dorval Chapman is the full name—thus supplanted Bobby Jones as the second most decisive winner in the history of the tournament. For Chapman whipped McCullough by 11 and 9, while Bobby's big score was 10 and 9 against Phil Perkins at Bree Burn in 1928.

McCullough, 32-year-old Philadelphian who reached the finals with conquests of two ex-champions and a two-time finalist, looked as if he were going to make a mark of it when he won two of the first three holes with birdies this morning.

But two holes later the match was squared. From there on McCullough could win only two holes with Chapman running off eight of the last nine and getting a half on the other.

Chapman probably has tinkered with his golf game more than any amateur in the country. But this week the 29-year-old sociable's unorthodox style stood up well enough to give him the medal with two sub-par rounds, bring him through preliminary triumphs against five tough customers, and finally carry him right to the championship. Havemeyer trophy with a four-under-par performance for 27 holes.

He played his home Winged Foot course like a master, and was entitled to full credit for his feat of succeeding Marvin (Bud) Ward of Spokane, Wash., as titleholder.

Yet McCullough earned his share of the credits. Through the final two-thirds of the match, and especially through the last nine holes, not a putt that he hit would drop. But the Philadelphian made no audible complaint. He didn't throw his clubs in disgust.

When it was all over, and his fourth shot on the final hole landed in a public parking lot, his only comment was: "I've got no kick. I just came for the ride, and I rode twice as far as I expected."

BOWLING PLAYOFF

The four high teams in the Twin City league will begin a playoff for the championship the first week in October, when the new alleys will be completed just two doors north of the present location of the bowling center. Currently, the first four clubs are pretty well bunched and should provide an interesting program.

SOMERSET, Ky.—(P)—Somerset residents set their watches by the town clock, and thereby hangs the failure of daylight saving time here.

"Fast time" was ordered by the city council. But the fiscal court, county governing body, refused to set ahead the clock at the court house. So the rest of Somerset clung to standard time.

OUACHITA LIONS READY FOR TIDE

Parish High Polishes Up Offensive For Contest With Minden Eleven

The Ouachita Lions came out of their opening encounter with the Louisiana Indians Thursday night in good shape with the exception of minor bruises.

Coach Mack Avants yesterday said he was more than pleased with the defense put up by his gridders but that work was still needed on the passing attack. The Lions were heavily outwitted in the line against Istrouma and therefore depended upon the aerial route for touchdowns that didn't come. The Indians broke up several passes while another slipped out of a receiver's hands in the end zone.

The Lion defense was another story, however, holding the ponderous Indians to eight first downs and twice stopping the Istrouma eleven cold with first down and goal to go. Ouachita made seven first downs.

Especially outstanding on the goal line stands of the Lion forwards were Wayne Doss and Bill Edgar, guards, Sam McNair, tackle, and Eason, center. B. F. Cummings also turned in a nice defensive job, doing some fine down field blocking, said Coach Avants.

The only mishap that might amount to anything serious was that to Bill Eason, who received an arm injury. He is expected to be in good shape for the Minden Crimson Tide battle in Minden next Friday.

Minden, although a class "A" eleven, nevertheless produces one of the best defensive teams in the state, as witnessed by their first contest last week. They beat the Sarepta eleven, 19 to 0, completely stopping the visitors.

The Lions will again be outwitted in the Minden battle but not as much as in the first game. However, the Lions will have an advantage over the Crimson Tide in the backfield and also boast more experience.

OLE MISS

UNIVERSITY, Miss., Sept. 14.—(P)—Mississippi's Rebels displayed excellent down field blocking today in scrimmage against a squad of husky freshmen and "B" team members.

Offensively, Junie Hovious, Merle Hayes, Lee Dodson and Jack Flack shone on ground and aerial plays, with Ray Terrell, sophomore find, especially impressive.

TULANE

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 14.—(P)—Fur flew in the Tulane camp today.

Pitted against each other in an old-fashioned everything-goes scrimmage were the Wave's mammoth first, second and third teams, each being given an opportunity to go on both offense and defense against the other. Fourth and fifth stringers were used to fill in at strategic times and spots.

With the Boston college game only two weeks away there was little to choose from in the respective abilities of the No. 1 and No. 2 squads and it seemed likely that the same closeness which existed between the Tulane units last year would be in evidence again.

TENNESSEE

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 14.—(P)—Tennessee's varsity and frosh gridders engaged today in a two-hour top-speed scrimmage which included everything but kick-offs.

The upperclassmen were played to a standstill in the early part of the fracas but with the arrival of fresh men displayed an attack that produced several touchdowns.

Major Bob Neyland exclaimed proudly over the manner in which Bob Fox performed at tailback.

FLORIDA

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Sept. 14.—(P)—Coach Tom Lieb sounded an optimistic note this afternoon after his University of Florida football team concluded a long scrimmage against the freshmen to end the second week of practice.

"I'm pleased with the steady improvement of the line, and say, did you see how this boy Mack went today," commented Lieb after the "Gators" shoved three touchdowns across the Frog goal.

Red Mack, whose performance drew Lieb's commendation, is a 185-pound junior fullback who was a reserve last season.

GEORGIA TECH

ATLANTA, Sept. 14.—(P)—Georgia Tech's Ralph Plaster was boosted to the varsity today by Coach Bill Alexander following a scrimmage that was featured by the back's running and blocking.

Plaster made two touchdowns on line smashes in a scrimmage that resulted in Alexander's saying the second team looked better than the first.

GEORGIA

ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 14.—(P)—Sparling running by Frankie Sinkwich highlighted a two-hour scrimmage of the University of Georgia Bulldogs today.

Sinkwich, aided by excellent blocking on the part of his teammates, ran roughshod over the freshmen and second squad, scoring four touchdowns during one 15-minute period.

AUBURN

AUBURN, Ala., Sept. 14.—(P)—Coach Jack Meagher watched his Auburn footballers end their second week of training in a brisk scrimmage here today and pronounced himself "well pleased" with their progress.

"Most of the starting posts for the opener with Howard September 27 are still open," Meagher said, "but the boys are making real progress."

VANDERBILT

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 14.—(P)—Vanderbilt's varsity football squad, and a husky bunch of freshmen using Washington & Lee played mixed it up for an hour today in an all out scrimmage and when the festivities ceased the oldsters were on the long end of a 40 to 0 count.

L. S. U.

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 14.—(P)—A bronzed and well conditioned squad of Louisiana State University gridders completed their second week of twice daily workouts with a hard scrimmage session today.

Classroom work will begin Monday, limiting practice to the afternoons. "On the whole I'm satisfied with the progress made," Coach Bernie Moore said. "Our forward passing attack hasn't been up to par and the development hasn't been as rapid as I had hoped to see. Our running game, however, has come along nicely."

"Marvin Jenkins has been looking good at the blocking back spot," he added. "J. W. Goree, Vivian Ganieloni and Bill Hogan have also shown to advantage during the week."

Nelson pulled a shoulder muscle when he was tackled after a 40-yard run and will be out for several days.

What looks like the first string backfield included Nelson, and Russ Craft at halves; Charley Deshane at quarter and Paul Spencer at fullback. This combination showed speed and power.

BOSOX WHIP TRIBE

CLEVELAND, Sept. 14.—(P)—Earl Johnson, a tall 21-year-old Boston Red Sox rookie, stalled off the second-place Cleveland Indians with four scattered singles today for a 6 to 1 victory.

Boston, held in submission for five innings by long-jawed Johnny Allen, Cleveland right-hander, turned on him in the next frame with a savage batting attack which produced six runs.

Meanwhile Johnson, a left-hander in his first year of professional baseball, was souping up the Indians into easy submission. The Seattle youth left St. Mary's College (Calif.) last winter, hurled in the Piedmont league for a while and was pulled in by the Red Sox two months ago. He justified Manager Joe Cronin's confidence by coming through for his sixth American league victory.

Today's setback, before about 7,000 fans, left the Indians still a half a game behind the Detroit Tigers.

The Indians were leading 1 to 0, when the Sox' bats spoke with authenticity in the sixth.

Dominic DiMaggio flied out, but Roger Cramer doubled and Cronin walked. Fox took aim and, almost bunting, dumped a slow double between short and third, scoring Cramer.

Ted Williams was passed to fill the bases. Bobby Doerr doubled, scoring Cronin and Fox.

Gelbert took two balls and was intentionally passed, but Gene Desautels singled, tallying Williams and Doerr. Joe Dobson succeeded Allen and induced Johnson to strike out, but DiMaggio singled, plating Gelbert. Cramer grounded out.

L. S. U., TECH GET SET FOR SATURDAY BATTLE

TIGERS, BULLDOGS TANGLE IN OPENER AT STATE CAPITAL

Ruston School Has Won Only One Game Since Grid Rivalry Began

RUSTON, Sept. 14.—(Special)—Louisiana Tech and Louisiana State University will get together again on the gridiron at Baton Rouge on September 21 for the first scheduled game since the fall of 1929. But as the two squads drill for their opener, if there is any revenge in the heart of L. S. U. it has been there for 35 years.

It was that long ago, in 1905—out back of where the Tech library building now stands—when Tech defeated the Bengals 7-0. That was something the Tech football players had not done before, and they haven't done it since. Just once, that's all. Louisiana State University followers have likely forgotten all about it; but the old-timers here who saw the game haven't forgotten. They wouldn't!

They even remember who scored the one and only touchdown in that one and only victory over L. S. U. It was the late Glen Walker of Shreveport, who died suddenly when stricken with a heart attack on a Shreveport golf course a few years ago.

Although the Techmen and the Tigers are getting ready for their first scheduled affair in 11 years, the two squads have met since then in a sort of glorified scrimmage a time or two—on occasions when the Bengals sought some first-hand experience in the Tech-employed Notre Dame system, which the Tigers subsequently tried out on some top-notch opponents.

In the 1929 game played at Baton Rouge, which severed the schedule business between the two eleven, the lone Tech counter was scored in the second quarter by C. E. (Sonny) Maroney, now coaching at Jonesboro. Maroney intercepted a pass thrown by L. S. U.'s Reeves about midfield. The Tigers were assessed penalties for roughness and offside, and Maroney collaborated with Nate Henderson and A. D. Baker to work the ball through the air down to the five-yard line. In three line plays, Maroney got the ball across and C. J. Gilbert of Winfield kicked the extra point.

That gave Tech seven points; but L. S. U. already had a few and gradually picked up some more, for a total of 53 of them.

It might be as bad as that in Baton Rouge on September 21. It could be, judging from the way Head Coach Joe Aillet sizes up Tech's side of the situation. But he hopes it won't, of course, and the boys are plugging away in the interest of giving the Tigers the best they have. They would like to give the people their money's worth—and speaking of money, that's the principal item explaining the reason little Tech is tackling the big Bengals again. Coach Aillet insinuates in a voice that is not too hushed.

The head coach has no complaint to make—seems pretty well satisfied with the way the boys are working, and he especially likes their morale, he says.

Line Coach Cecil Crowley likewise appreciates the showing his charges. "The linemen are getting better all the time in offensive blocking," Coach Crowley remarked.

Whit Vasconcello of Minden, a junior tackle, particularly has recently been forging ahead into performance commensurate with his size 204, and may be hitched up at the starting post formerly slated for Bill Nash, who has a bruised leg to hold him down.

Harry Widener, another tackle, weighing about 210, continues lame with a knee injury.

Shoot-The-Works Attitude Prevails In Alabama Camp

Crimson Tide Gridders Out To Knock Off Some Big Shots

By Paul Duncan
Tuscaloosa, Ala., Sept. 14.—(AP)—There's a football renaissance going on down here in Alabama.

You feel it when you walk onto Denny field, and see there one of the youngest and greenest squads an Alabama coach has had since 1922. There's a sort of recklessness in the air, a shoot-the-works feeling that is contagious.

A member of the coaching staff analyzed it this way: "We were on top for years, with the pressure on all the time. Then we started losing and everybody tightened up even more. Now we're the underdogs and nobody's expecting us to win all the time."

"It will take several years if we are to get back on top. In the meantime, we're going to have a lot of fun knocking off some of the big shots who used to keep us on the spot."

The ebullient young fellows Frank Thomas has assembled here won't be satisfied to get kicked around for long. Of 40 candidates, only five are seniors. Juniors and sophomores will be at seven starting posts, with the first-year men getting their share.

Thomas won't lack ball carriers, but he must develop a blocking back—weak link last year—from among Charley Deshane, Don Salls and Al Sabo, all sophomores but all capable.

He will miss big Walt Merrill and Carey Cox in the line, but Noah Langdale and a hard-knocking sophomore, Cliff Hansen, are scuffling for the tackle vacancy, and Warren Averette, a senior, reliably understudied Cox at center last year. Other losses will hardly be noticed.

Jimmy Nelson is the No. 1 back at left half, where he moved to take over punting, passing and running duties. Scrambling for his vacated right half job are a pair of sophs—Dave Brown and Russ Craft—while Alabama folk vow will set the woods afire this fall.

Paul Spencer, junior fullback, has added blocking and tackling efficiency to his plunging prowess. Pass-catching ends are underfoot all over Denny field, with Captain Hall Newman and Holt Rast as starters and Tom Maxwell, Sam Sharpe, Babs Roberts and George Weeks, all first-year men, eager to fill in.

Hank Crisp, in excellent health after a vacation, is back coaching the tackles and reports 235-pound Fred Davis cleared of scholastic difficulties, will be back at left tackle. Ed Hickerson, senior, and John Wyhonic, junior, are starting guards.

A hand-carved schedule gives the Tide a running start for the Tennessee game October 19 and an open date the week after. Spring Hill is the opener, September 28, followed by Mercer and Howard. Then come the Vols, with Kentucky, Tulane, Georgia Tech, Vanderbilt and Mississippi following.

AGGIES STRONG, BUT BIG RED HAS SMOOTHER GOING

Ohio State Looms As Chief Challenge To Lake Cayuga Squad

By Dillon Graham
(Sports Editor, Associated Press Feature Service)

NEW YORK.—Future book estimates tab Cornell as the major football team most likely to romp through its 1940 schedule unbeaten and lay claim to the national championship.

Any pre-season prediction must be based not only on the strength of the various ball clubs but also on the strength of the opposition they must encounter.

So while other teams shape up as perhaps as formidable as the Big Red clan from Lake Cayuga, it appears doubtful that they can maintain the momentum necessary to take a series of high hurdles in rapid succession.

Ohio State looms as the chief challenge to Cornell. The Big Red has the advantage of tackling the Buckeyes in Ithaca. Cornell defeated the Ohioans last year and has an excellent chance of repeating the triumph. The opening game with Colgate and the November 2 spot with Columbia may be other trouble stations.

Princeton is another outfit with rosy prospects but the Tigers limit their slate exclusively to the East with the exception of an inaugural against Vanderbilt, a none-too-potent South-eastern foe.

Texas A. and M., ranked No. 1 a year ago, apparently is even stronger and will field a powerful machine built around Jarring Kimbrough, All-America fullback. However, Southwestern gridiron history shows that a champion never repeats and the Aggies must tackle their fiercest foes—S. M. U. and Baylor—on foreign fields. Homer Norton's entry also may have difficulties with T. C. U., driving back to the top after a slump, and with U. C. L. A., unbeaten Pacific coast squad.

Although the Aggies' chances for a perfect season are not as good as those of Cornell and Princeton, they definitely are better than fair. S. M. U., with a clever collection of backfielders, looks for its best campaign since 1935 but the Mustangs must go at a fast gallop to outrun U. C. L. A., Pitt and Auburn besides their home state foes. The Christians are expected to show more improvement than any other Southwest team, with a sophomore, Dean Bagley, slated to make forward pass enthusiasts forget about Sammy Baugh and Davey O'Brien.

Michigan, Ohio State and Indiana rate as the standouts in the Big Ten with Notre Dame, Michigan State and Marquette ranked as the best of the non-conference clubs. Michigan, one of the best in 1939, has hopes of an even stronger team, with a "dream backfield" built around Slithering Tom Harmon, the blocking master Forest Evashevski, Bob Westfall and Bob Zimmerman. If sophomores or reserves come through, Ohio State should be on a par with its strong team of a year ago. Bo McMillin has more and better material and so Indiana expects to have a say-so in the awarding of the Western Conference crown.

Notre Dame, as usual, will have a strong club, some say even better than usual, but the schedule appears too rocky for successful navigation. The Irish have a fine backfield of Bob Hargrave at quarter, Bob Saggau and Bernie Crimmins at the halves and mighty Milt Piepul at fullback.

Tulane, Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia Tech, Duke and North Carolina all look good in Dixie. In addition to its 1939 ground attack, Tulane can of some pass-tossing sophomores.

Tennessee lost famed George Cafego but has Bob Foss, Johnny Butler and a great line paced by Tackle Abe Shires and Guards Bob Suffridge and Ed Molinski. An extremely difficult offer an aerial barrage with the help schedule may stop Tulane but Tennessee has an easier route with Duke and Alabama as the main foes.

Alabama went into a tail spin last year but the Crimson, with speed as the keynote, may come back strong with Jimmy Nelson as the top back. Georgia Tech lost some of the main springs in its puzzling offensive and may not be able to hold to its fast pace of 1939.

Duke lost a flock of stars but scouts report that Wallace Wade will have another championship contender (if he can get by Tennessee October 5). Thompson Prothro, son of the baseball Phillies' pilot, Doc Prothro, quarterback the Blue Devils, North Carolina, looking for an improved team over its once-beaten, once-tied 1939 club, may find schedule troubles with such antagonists as Texas Christian, Tulane, Fordham and Duke.

Wake Forest may toss a surprise into the Southern Conference while Clemson, without All-America Banks McPadden, likely will be below its last year par.

Southern California, U. C. L. A. and Washington shape up as the best among Far Western clubs. The Trojans lost such aces as Grannys Lansdell, Ambrose Schindler and Doyle Nave, but Coach Howard Jones, normally a pessimistic fellow, says the Men of Troy will be hard to take. The Uclans' offensive is built around a negro flash, Jackie Robinson, while the Huskies center their plans around Punter Dean McAdams. Washington may be bumped off at the outset by Minnesota, and U. C. L. A. may not get past its trio of early foes, S. M. U., Santa Clara and the Texas Aggies.

Nebraska, with Harry (Hippity) Hopp, Herman Rohrig and Vike Francis, appears the strongest of the Big Six teams, with Missouri and Oklahoma as challengers. Missouri's suc-

Louisiana Normal Demons Hard Hit By Graduation

Coach Turpin To Call Upon Sophs; Wiggins, Migues Returning Backs

NATCHITOCHES, Sept. 14.—(Special)—History is repeating itself in the camp of the Louisiana State Normal college Demons as Coach Harry Turpin goes about the job of gradually plugging the holes left in his 1939 juggernaut through graduation of ten seniors and the "quitting" of a half dozen other huskies who were being depended on to help carry on this year.

Last year the Demon mentor had to draw heavily from sophomore candidates for his eleven which startled the followers of the "Little Biggies" when it went through an undefeated and untied season to bowl over two conferences and check up the best record ever made by a Purple and White team here.

With only 16 lettermen back in harness this season, Coach Turpin is again forced to draw heavily from a group of squadmen and a flock of sophomores who, however, went through the season under the tutelage of frosh mentor, Walter Ledet, last year undefeated.

Neither Coach Turpin nor his assistant Alvin "Cracker" Brown are singing the blues over the situation. On the contrary there is an optimistic note in their voices as they comment about the way their charges are coming through the early days of training. No serious casualties and a fine spirit among the candidates tend to keep the morale of the Demon outfit on a high level.

Led by Parker Wiggins, all-S. I. A. A. back last year, the ball carriers on the Demon squad this year number eight dependables, three seniors, three juniors and two sophomores; while three men, a senior, a junior and a sophomore, are bidding for the quarterback job.

In addition to Wiggins, Coach Turpin has Roland Migues, another senior, who placed on the second all-S. I. A. A. team in 1939 by virtue of his 7.64 yards average in 65 trips with the oval last year; Willie Black, senior, who made an average of 6.42 yards for each of 31 trips with the ball; and Gus Boucher, junior, who stepped off an even 500 yards in 132 tries last season.

To bolster this galaxy of star ball carriers are James Sweeney, junior; Solmie Mayer, junior; O. H. Haynes, sophomore; and Pat Nation, sophomore.

Two lettermen on last year's champion eleven are out for the quarter-backing spot this year, Alman Marron, senior, and Ted Wright, junior, while Toxy Bourn, sophomore, who came through nicely on the frosh team last season, is in the understudy slot.

Although only one letterman, Eddie Schumacher, junior, is back for the guard position this year, Coach Turpin has six additional men to choose from, three juniors, Ralph Priest, Tom George and George Martin, and three sophomores, Eldon Chachere, Emil Samee and Tom Southerland.

In the tackle and end posts there is a good supply of lettermen, four in the former and three in the latter. The "N" weavers at tackle are Woodrow Miller, captain, V. A. Dunham, James Gaspard and Talbert Simpson, while the lettermen at end are Ernest Tyler, alternate captain, Ernest Wright and C. L. Starnes. Two tackles showing up well are Woodrow Wright and Otto Harrison, while Al Subat, Edwin McDermott and Cotton Meager are making strong bids.

TRIO WILL STUDY FOOD STAMP PLAN

McDonald, Thompson, Holland
Will Confer With Orleans
Official

H. A. McDonald, E. N. Thompson and Secretary George D. Holland, Chamber of Commerce representatives, will visit in New Orleans Monday to make a careful study of the food stamp plan setup there, it was announced Saturday.

While in New Orleans, the trio will confer with Richard R. Foster, director of the Orleans Parish Health Department, sponsors of the food stamp plan. On the return trip Tuesday, they will meet C. Ellis Henican, state commissioner of Public Welfare at Baton Rouge.

All local requirements for the early inauguration of the food stamp plan have been met, according to Mr. McDonald, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Wholesale Committee, sponsor of the plan.

The committee has been at work for over three months in getting this plan for Monroe. Mr. McDonald this week expressed gratitude to members of the Ouachita Parish Police Jury and city officials of Monroe and West Monroe for their fine spirit of co-operation.

The local requirements are an $8,500 revolving fund and the salaries of a stamp issuing officer and an auditor, in addition to office expenditures. The police jury will provide the majority of funds required for employees, Mr. McDonald stated.

TELLS OF TRIES TO INVADE ISLES

Doctor Returned From France
Says Germans Made Several Attempts

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Dr. Charles F. Bove, 52-year-old American surgeon just returned from 25 years residence in Paris, says several unsuccessful attempts have been made to land German armed forces on Britain's shores.

In London a military source told The Associated Press that "absolutely no attempt at invasion in any size, shape or form" had been made by Nazi forces.

Arriving from Lisbon, Portugal, aboard the American export liner Ex-cambion, Dr. Bove declared "the Germans have tried the invasion several times at different points and each time they failed."

In addition, the surgeon told of having seen hundreds of German bodies in the waters near Cherbourg, France. (Although the British denied any invasion attempts, the censor passed Dr. Bove's story for publication in Great Britain.)

(The London military source said it was possible a German transport ship had been bombed or torpedoed and that this might account for German bodies in waters near Cherbourg.)

CHANGES FOLLOW STUDY BY PITTS

Recommendations Made By Instructor Responsible For Program

Significance of commercial education on the junior college level gave impetus to the work "A Study of the Commerce Curricula at the Northeast Junior College," recently completed by A. B. Pitts, instructor in commerce at the school.

The author chose the subject for his thesis used in the work towards the master's degree at Louisiana State University.

The study was made to determine whether commercial graduates of Northeast Junior College are being adequately trained for their initial jobs and adequately prepared to continue their education in collegiate schools of business.

Questionnaires sent to commercial graduates and their employers served as a basic device in obtaining practical information regarding graduates.

Replies to these questionnaires included the following recommendations and criticisms from employers: Practical experience should be provided; fundamental tool subjects should receive more emphasis; students are hesitant to assume responsibility.

Information from graduates showed that 38 per cent were not being adequately served. They advocated expansion of the commerce curricula to include courses in office practice, business correspondence, business machines, secretarial accounting, and salesmanship.

An examination of the findings of the study led the author to conclude that a followup study of graduates should be continued. Information received through this channel would be useful in guidance, he claimed.

He also advocated the establishment of an employment bureau that would be of mutual benefit to employers and graduates.

Failure of the student in assuming responsibilities would be remedied to a large extent by stressing individual initiative and the value of accepting responsibility in such courses as office practice, salesmanship, and business correspondence, Mr. Pitts said.

In discussing the major functions of the junior college, special emphasis was placed upon the terminal function. Questionnaires showed that 41 per cent of Northeast Junior College students completing the two-year commercial course do not receive additional formal education. Terminal curricula in business administration and secretarial science were recommended, in addition to the preparatory curricula.

With the number of curricula increased, the importance of guidance cannot be over emphasized, according to the writer. "The student should understand that a terminal curriculum should be elected with the view that it will be the end of his formal education, and that credit allowed for a terminal course cannot be transferred to an accredited senior college."

The value of recommendations made by Mr. Pitts in this study is particularly significant in view of the general expansion of the commercial department in preparation for this year's work.

Five courses advocated by him have been added, and provision for terminal education in business administration and secretarial science curricula went into effect at the beginning of the fall semester.

An employment bureau, which he recommended, was recently established with J. T. Johnson, head of the commerce department, as chairman.

The new Timm plastic training plane is a low wing monoplane powered with a 160 h.p. Kinner engine. The plane has a wing span of 36 feet, 24 feet 10 inches long, top speed of 140 miles an hour and cruising speed of 129 miles an hour.

PLAN 'FURNITURE WEEK' OBSERVANCE

Monroe furniture dealers will actively participate in the observance of National Furniture Week, to be observed from September 21 to 28. The local committee, shown above, was appointed by the Retail Merchants division of the Chamber of Commerce, with Ron Campbell, seated, sales manager of the Monroe Furniture Company, as chairman. Other members, standing, left to right, are Hal Hodges, Sears, Roebuck and Company; Louis Kusun, Dixie Bedding and Furniture Company; J. E. Bryan, Durrett Hardware and Furniture Company, and Harvey Barham, Montgomery Ward. Monroe furniture dealers plan to hold "open house" one night during the week, at which time special displays will be exhibited.

The War Today

By Dewitt MacKenzie

(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer)

You and I are in the same position today as the British government, our attention being divided between Hitler's threatened invasion of Britain across the milling waters of the English channel and Mussolini's proposed assault on Egypt over the killing waters of the desert—both ranking among the most difficult military operations of all time.

I mention this distraction because it represents an important element of the axis strategy—making the British defend themselves on two vital fronts at once. However, while Il Duce's maneuvers haven't yet developed to the point where we can say that they are more than a mirage amongst the sand dunes, the bloody assault on England (invasion or no invasion) maintains its terrific pace.

Again the Germans returned to a tortured but stubbornly determined London for a nerve-shattering night of bombing. And again it would appear that civilian morale ranks above all other objectives, although the blasting of this great rail and industrial center certainly is of vast military importance.

The British Royal Air Force continued to hammer at German bases and communications along the continental coast where the fleet of barges and small boats is being assembled for possible invasion. That's the English game now—to smash concentrations of boats, supplies and troops, and disrupt rail communication.

Word from Berlin is that Herr Hitler is "biding his own time" for his supreme blow and "won't be hurried." That goes without saying if you know Der Fuehrer. He is a law unto himself—"the" law, to be more accurate—and his word alone controls all vital operations.

Speculation as to when, if at all, the invasion may come is futile. It is interesting to note, however, that there is a full moon next week, and that Wednesday will give England its highest tide of the period. Both these are held by many experts to be favorable for the operation.

The Nazi bombing of Buckingham Palace with the king and queen in residence was a staggering incident of the conflict. There are few things which would do more to spur the British people to resistance than this.

The Nazi government has said that this was accidental. So probably would the British characterize the dropping of a bomb the other day near Hitler's chancellery in Berlin. The question arises in many minds, however, as to whether chivalry is disappearing from the fighting man's code.

One can't help recalling the record of Germany's greatest air hero—the gallant Baron von Richthofen who lost his life in combat during the World War. This dare-devil flyer would tack his crimson plane onto the tail of an enemy machine and chase it right over its own trenches close to the ground. But let his opponent suffer such an accident as the jamming of a machine gun, thus depriving him of his defensive weapon, and Richthofen would dip his plane in salute and allow his crippled foe to ride away.

I was on the Somme when the baron was shot down, and the Allies gave this universally admired flyer a military funeral which was a magnificent tribute to chivalry and sportsmanship.

Mussolini's share of this drama—the battle of the Mediterranean—is for control of that inland sea which Britain now definitely holds and Il Duce seeks. The destinies of both empires are largely dependent on free access to these blue waters which represent one of the great cross-roads of the world.

For England the defense of this lifeline is well-nigh as vital as is the winning of the battle of Britain. For Italy, domination would mean expansion and great power. Possession of the Mediterranean would mean the end of the British empire in the East.

Egypt alone would bring vast wealth in its cotton, grains and minerals—not to mention its strategic value.

Mussolini's position isn't wholly enviable. He was pretty well prepared for a fast and furious fight when he entered the war, but not for a protracted engagement. His weakness is his vulnerability to naval blockade.

Again the Germans returned to a tortured but stubbornly determined London for a nerve-shattering night of bombing. And again it would appear that civilian morale ranks above all other objectives, although the blasting of this great rail and industrial center certainly is of vast military importance.

PROVOSTY NAMED TO BAR COMMITTEE

BATON ROUGE, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Governor Sam Jones today appointed Ledoux R. Provosty, Alexandria attorney, to an advisory committee of 15 to assist the state supreme court in organizing the new Louisiana State Bar Association.

The Legislature at its last session abolished the old state bar of the Huey Long regime and gave the supreme court power to make rules for the organization of the association.

The court provided that the organizing committee consist of a lawyer from each congressional district, the members to be selected at a convention October 8 in New Orleans, New Iberia, Shreveport, Monroe, Baton Rouge, Lake Charles and Alexandria; the deans of the law schools of Louisiana State, Loyola and Tulane universities or their representatives, the president of the Louisiana State Law Institute, a member elected by the junior bar section of the American Bar Association and the governor's appointee.

The membership books are offered to local citizens at an outstanding low price and include admission to five three-act plays which will be presented at Northeast Junior College.

Vacationists Return Home To Prepare For Autumn Social Activities Here

Fall Season Promises Outstanding Affairs

Thomas Davenports Return From Travels In Tropics; Youngsters Ready For School Monday

By Eve Bradford

WITH one leap Autumn rushed in over night. The North wind, chanting a dirge for the end of summer, dispelled the summer heat with one mighty blast and sent everyone scurrying to the shops in search of warm clothing. And what a joy it was to discard tattered summer clothes. How incongruous those flowered dresses, floppy hats, and white shoes after being fitted to a sleek, tailored suit, a smart hat and perhaps a silver fox scarf. A cat can most certainly look at a queen and even though a slender purse will not permit such extravagance as silver fox, one can experience the joy of catching a fleeting glimpse of one's self in the shop's mirror.

The lackadaisical mode of living is gone. There is a sudden urge to do things—hang new drapes in the home, remove the faded slip covers, light the logs in the fireplace, and settle down in the bosom of the family for a winter of contentment.

Vacationists have all returned home. Even Enola Rogers, who loves the early fall in Blowing Rock where Autumn flings flaming banners in the nearby mountains, has returned home and spread the welcome mat on the threshold of her attractive home on Island Drive.

The Thomas Davenports have traveled far and wide this past summer. They escaped the anxiety that attends the building of a new home, and have returned to find their new abode on the Loop road ready for occupancy. They firmly believe that the very best course for home builders to follow is to depart on a vacation during construction and leave everything in the hands of a good architect. Their vacation was a thrilling one. They cruised the Caribbean sea, journeyed far into the highlands of Guatemala, and later visited friends at Tela in Spanish Honduras. Most interesting was their tour of Guatemala City where they engaged a guide and motored into the hills where they explored the Indian villages, attended their fiestas, and their markets, and watched them in their fantastic religious rituals. In Chichicastenango they gathered great arms of gorgeous wild orchids. Coffee and banana plantations were visited and several never-to-be-forgotten days were spent in the lake country, ten thousand feet above the sea level, and in tropical highlands of perpetual spring. They disembarked in New Orleans and Eula hurried to Alpine, Tex., to get her daughter, Mary Jo, who visited her grandmother during the absence of her parents.

Mary Wilton McHenry, who spent a few weeks with her parents, Carl and Frances McHenry, horseback riding and hiking in the Rockies at Estes Park, arrived home last week and took one last fling at summer. She invited her young friends for a swimming party. After the plunge they sat under the trees and munched on sweets unmindful of their calories.

Heard above the wailing winds of Autumn is the goodbye to Summer lament of boys and girls who will jump into their clothes tomorrow morning, snatch a piece of toast and a glass of milk and dash out of the house. School days are here again—classroom days when young America acquires its three R's and reaches out with its mind to the world beyond the narrow confines of the school room.

The babies of yesterday have suddenly grown up. They are starting off for their first day of school tomorrow, leaving their mothers in tears. Tragic moments those. Infants getting away from maternal apron strings and entering a world of their own. Imagine Ken Albington starting off for school—Barry Barringer is another study little urchin, a mere babe it seems, who will march off to school tomorrow. Nancy Trousdale will join the procession of first graders and so will Dickie Guerrero and Charles Slade. Minnette Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Smith, will be enrolled as a first grader and so will Elizabeth Leigh, cunning little daughter of Cynthia and Ned Leigh. Can't imagine Bobbie Shatto walking into the world without Sara's guiding hand. He will be among the throng entering the first grade. It will be easy for him to master the three R's if he follows the footsteps of his learned grandfather, E. L. Neville.

Saw Sallie Merideth looking at swanky little suits and sweaters for her two grandsons who will leave baby days behind when the school doors close behind them tomorrow. They will be first graders.

Kindergartners were painlessly initiated into the wonders of their new world at Vera Lofton's kindergarten last Friday. They were first given cunning favors, then their affections were won with candy. After the first moments of shyness they were given bright colored papers and scissors and A. B. C. blocks—suddenly, so engrossed were they, the time had flown and their first day at kindergarten was a joy instead of a fearful experience.

No question about this week's art thrill. It's one that will engage the attention of men, women and children even though they have never attempted to paint a picture or dabble in colors. The faculty lounge of Northeast Junior college where the oil paintings loaned by the Southern Art League, will be exhibited, will be a pleasant place to spend an hour or so this afternoon and any afternoon during the coming week. The paintings are diversified in subject. You will find landscapes, figure studies, portraits, still life, and marines. You will find many brilliant, large paintings in this collection. The romantic landscape with towering trees and full clouds, will intrigue you. The several magnificently handled still life arrangements are in a newer vein and are among the most intriguing achievements.

Members of the Monroe Art association extend a cordial invitation to the Monroe public to be their guests this afternoon and to enjoy at leisure this exhibit of paintings from the brush of the south's most eminent artists.

Of interest to their many friends is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Louise Carpenter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Fred Carpenter, of Bastrop, and Joseph E. Amman, son of Mrs. Louise R. Amman and the late Fred C. Amman, of Monroe, which was solemnized on Saturday, August 31, 1940 at St. Joseph's rectory in New Orleans, La., with the Rev. W. M. Hopp officiating.

The bride attended Louisiana Tech and Louisiana State Normal College where she was a member of Pi Kappa Sigma sorority.

Mr. Amman, a graduate of Loyola University, is a Monroe attorney. After September 10, they will be at home to their friends at 1400 North Third street, Monroe, La.

Miss Catherine Dean Weds George B. Vaughan

Announcement has been made of the wedding of Miss Catherine Dean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dean, and George Byron Vaughan, Jr., son of Mrs. G. B. Vaughan and the late Mr. Vaughan, at the Baptist parsonage with the pastor, Reverend L. T. Hastings, officiating.

An improvised altar was reared in the living room with southern smilax and woodwardia ferns forming a background. White tapers burned in tall white standards interspersed with dahlias in the autumn colors. The tapers were lighted by Miss Elethia Edwards.

Miss Melba Busby, soloist, sang "I Love You Truly," accompanied by Mrs. Charles Gausshell, pianist.

Miss Marguerite Ikerd, the bride's attendant, wore a smart black crepe model with corsage of rose colored gladiolas. Mr. Medreith Johnson served as best man.

The bride wore a beautiful steel blue model with black accessories and a corsage of bride's roses and white asters. For something old she wore an old gold ring in possession of the family for 100 years or more.

Immediately following the ceremony an informal reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's mother was wearing a navy blue sheer model with corsage of white gladiolas and the bride-groom's mother wore a flowered chiffon model with corsage of white roses.

The bride's table, overlaid with handsome lace and linen, was presided over by Miss Elethia Edwards who served punch from a crystal bowl placed at one end of the table and encircled with beautiful yellow dahlias.

Following their honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Vaughan will be at home to their friends at 1409 Filhiol avenue.

The bride is a graduate of the Ouachita Parish High school and attended Louisiana Tech. She is a member of Sigma Kappa sorority. Mr. Vaughan attended Northeast Junior college.

Baptist Student Union Meets At Junior College

Registration at Northeast Junior College had an interesting interlude when the Baptist Student Union held open house Tuesday morning from 9:30 till 12 o'clock for the faculty and student body.

A. B. Pitts and Dallas Goss, sponsors of the organization, planned the informal occasion "to acquaint the students of N. J. C. with each other and to assure them the faculty is vitally interested in their welfare."

A large representation of membership of the college unit and their friends were welcomed by Edgar Edmondson, president of the organization, Wilma Walters, Ruth Goss and Dorothy Prince, council members, and faculty sponsors.

Miss Corinne Brown, associate state student-secretary of the B. S. U., assisted in serving delicious fruit trappe.

Mrs. Florence Zeiger Albright gave several piano selections.

Among the guests who called during the morning were Chester Swor, noted youth leader and English instructor at Mississippi College; Rev. L. T. Hastings, Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Prince, Mrs. D. C. Black, Mrs. Ava Aswell and Mrs. Durward Barron.

RAINBOW OFFICER . . .

Miss Reita Brownlee, enthusiastic member of the Monroe Assembly of Rainbow Girls, was recently elected worthy advisor of that organization.

Miss Pauline Snowden Weds Jack Morrison

Claiming the interest of friends is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Pauline Marie Snowden and Jack Louis Morrison at the home of the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. J. T. Cahill, September 6, with Dr. E. Hayward, rector of Grace Episcopal Church, officiating.

The double-ring ceremony was performed beneath an arch fashioned of southern smilax and woodwardia fern. Miss Rosalee Sherman served as maid of honor and J. W. Nelson served in the capacity of best man.

An informal reception followed and the bride cut the beautifully embossed wedding cake, which was served with frosted fruit frappe from a crystal bowl presided over by Miss Jo Ann Veach.

The bride is a graduate of the Columbia High School and the bridegroom is a graduate of the Ouachita Parish High School.

Mr. and Mrs. Morrison are now at home to their friends at 313 North Third street.

Richardsons Entertain Tech Faculty Members

The lovely gardens surrounding the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Richardson on the Louisiana Tech campus, Ruston, was the setting for a delightful tea when they entertained in honor of the Tech faculty and their families.

As the guests entered the garden they were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Richardson, and in turn presented to the new members of the faculty.

During the hour of informal greetings, the guests were served from a lovely, lace-covered table, centered with a beautiful arrangement of asters shading from orchid to deep purple. At one end of the table was a crystal punch bowl, presided over by Miss Irene Tolliver, supervisor of the Tech dining hall.

Rainbow Girls Elect Officers For Year

An interesting event of the past week was the election and installation of the Monroe Assembly, number five, of the Order of Rainbow Girls.

This organization, made up of "teen" age girls, was founded April 6, 1922 by W. Mark Sexson at McAlester, Oklahoma.

Rainbow is a character building institution for girls, which enables them to live a richer and more complete life if they would learn the art of looking out for things that will lighten the burden of others.

These young girls have as their sponsors the order of the Eastern Star members. They render as much help as possible and encourage the girls to take an interest in their work.

Numerous social activities are planned during the year for the girls. Mainly holiday dances, mother and daughter banquets, religious activities, and charitable programs.

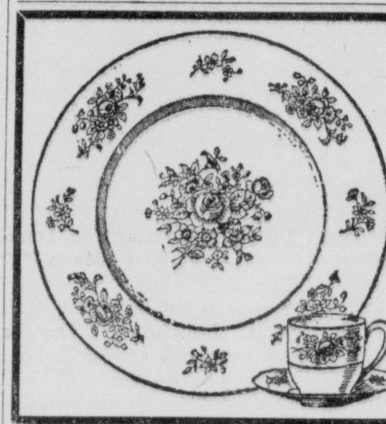

Installing officers which took part at the meeting last Friday evening were Mrs. Floye Ham, installing officer; Miss Barbara Sackett, installing marshal; Miss Geneva Castle, installing organist; Miss Julia Wilson, installing chaplain.

Officers who were elected and installed are Misses Katherine Morris, Peggy Strong, Margaret Goehonour, Biddy Mashaw, Lucy Helen Keller, Betty Carter, Lucille Congleton, Nancy Holman, Judy Roberts, Nettie Jean Williams, Rosemary Dawson, Elizabeth Johnson, Virginia Newman, Bessie Sheppard, Pauline Collier, Margie Wilkins, and Doris Roe.

At this installation service Miss Barbara Sackett received her Junior Post Worthy Advisor's pin, which was presented to her by the assembly.

Mrs. Joseph Amman, Recent Bride, Guest Of Honor At Fashionable Affair

Mrs. Wood's Home Is Scene Of Reception

Bride Of Recent Date Introduced To Monroe Society At One Of Season's Largest Affairs

Mrs. Joseph Amman, bride of recent date, was introduced to Monroe society at one of the largest affairs of the early fall season in the home of Mrs. R. L. Wood with Miss Evelina Amman, co-hostess, Thursday morning between the hours of ten and twelve.

Beautiful flowers banked the reception suite and formed a decorative background for the hostesses, their guest of honor and members of the receiving line, including Mrs. Fred Carpenter, Mrs. Louise Amman and Mrs. M. B. Amman.

Mrs. Amman, the guest of honor, and the central figure in this gathering of smartly attired women, was wearing a lovely soldier blue model with accessories of brown and a corsage of tube roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. I. J. Wolff and Mrs. John Pracher presided over the beautifully appointed, lace covered table in the dining room where handsome silver coffee services graced either end. An immense bowl of chrysanthemums in the autumn shades formed the central decor.

Luscious open-faced sandwiches, pastries and sweetmeats were passed on silver trays by Mrs. Charles Reid, assisted by a coterie of lovely girls, Vivyan Harper, Betty Jean Greenwell, Joan Gibbons, Elizabeth Ann Wood and Joyce Siegle.

Two hundred guests were extended courtesies during the receiving hours.

Aims Of University Women Announced Here

Members of the Monroe branch of the American Association of University Women have received a pamphlet, just issued by the national organization relative to steps to be taken by the association's 68,000 members.

A survey of its own community by each branch is proposed as a first step where such surveys previously have not been made.

"Confer with leaders in different fields—education, youth problems, social welfare, consumer interest, etc.—to discover where your help will be most needed," the pamphlet suggests.

Among the specific things a branch can do is to offset hysteria by promoting clear public thinking on important issues through discussion groups and forums.

Protection of the public schools against unwise economies and from infringement of academic freedom is another responsibility which branches may assume, yet another is to safeguard consumer interests by watching changes in price and quality of goods, and by urging that consumers be represented by defense committees.

Preserving fundamental social welfare programs, aiding the adjustment of immigrants to America, supporting constructive youth programs and cataloging association members in order to make their talents available for public service are other steps proposed.

Already the national association has done extensive work in behalf of European associations of university women. Money has been raised to help these women refugees and their children. Through a nation-wide appeal the American members also have made available 6,000 homes for the use of British refugee children.

Books About Current Events At Library

For the past year the tide of events in America and throughout the world has been more than turbulent and far-reaching than in any previous period of equal length in our history. Hence the demand for current books, giving the illuminating opinions of authorities on world events and diplomacy, has greatly increased. In order for the public to understand the reasons for these swift moving events, the librarian has arranged a collection of books concerning vital issues of the day. The public is welcome at any time to see this display and read these enlightening books.

One especially recommended is "The Ramparts We Watch," by Major George Fielding Eliot, which gives a thorough insight into the problems of American national defense upon which the security of America rests. How big an army and navy do we need? How are they to be employed? Are our coast defenses adequate? Are we immune from air attack? All these problems and many others are presented in this informative book by Major Eliot.

In the book "Inside Europe," John Gunther, an outstanding American foreign correspondent, gives an accurate personality study of the world's dictators: Hitler, Mussolini, Stalin and their associates and rivals. "Inside Europe" is an indispensable book for anyone who wishes to better understand the upheaval and unrest in contemporary Europe.

Other informative books of great interest are: "Neutrality for the United States," by E. Borchard and W. P. Lage; "Democracy Today and Tomorrow," by Erika and Klaus Mann; "The House That Hitler Built," by Stephen H. Roberts; "The Revolution of Nihilism," by H. Rauschning; "The Last Five Hours of Austria," by E. Lennhoff; "Our Battle," by Van Loon; "America and World Peace," by Honorable J. H. Clarke; "Why Meddle in the Orient?" by Boake Carter and Thomas Healy; "The Challenge to Liberty," by Herbert Hoover; "A Foreign Policy for America," by Charles Beard; "How To Be a Responsible Citizen," by Roy and Eliza Wright; "The Way Out of War," by C. Saerchinger; "We or They," by H. F. Armstrong; "Liberty," by Everett D. Martin; "The Outlawry of War," by Charles C. Morrison; "When There Is No Peace," by H. T. Armstrong; "America Now," edited by Harold Stearns; "Let the Record Speak," by Dorothy Thompson.

Mrs. John Best, accompanied by her daughter, Marcia, will leave today for Baton Rouge to attend the wedding of her sister, Miss Mary Scott Caruth, whose marriage to Richard Luxford of Denver, Colo., will be a brilliant event of the week. Mrs. Best will serve as matron of honor and Marcia will serve as flower girl.

First Meeting Of Year Is Held By Garden Club

Members Hear Informative Talk By Mrs. T. C. Rowland Who Tells Of Winter Care Of Bulbs

It seems that a great number of women have turned to gardening to counter-balance the pressure of daily living. They find it is a magic elixir. The seasons pass by in their appointed times, and with each, one finds solace. In the early spring there is cleaning and spading, harrowing and raking and planting. Then comes the thrill of waiting period while the seeds undergo their mysterious process of starting a new life toward the sunlight. Weeding and cultivating keeps the gardener busy all summer and then comes the season of fulfillment. That season is now at hand and all Garden club members are meeting regularly to discuss their program for the approaching winter and spring.

Gardening has been the means of satisfying a large group of women, members of the Monroe Garden club, who are now looking forward to a busy season following a period of inactivity. The first meeting of the new year was held in the club room of the Monroe Furniture company where an interesting program on the cultivation of iris was presented.

Mrs. T. C. Rowland gave valuable information on the winter care of bulbs and the different sprays to be used at this time of year. She also discussed the preparation of soil for early spring planting.

The next meeting, October 14, will be of exceptional interest as it will be held in conjunction with the Welcome Branch Garden club, recently organized and boasting a splendid membership.

Officers guiding the destiny of the Monroe Garden club during the coming season are: President, Mrs. J. Hunter Thacher; first vice-president, Mrs. Fred Fudick; second vice-president, Mrs. C. E. GRAY HAIR at MY age?
I can't AFFORD it!
You can't afford it, either.
So, if you have gray hair, just wet it with Canute Water. A few applications will completely re-color it, similar to its former natural shade. In one day, if you wish. After that, attention only once a month will keep it that way.
Curl your hair or get a permanent. There's no interference. Your hair remains clean and natural to the touch and looks natural in any light... even after shampooing, sunshine, perspiration or salt-water bathing.

'The Sea Hawk' Opens Engagement At Paramount Today

Flynn Stars In Thrilling New Picture

Brenda Marshall, Claude Rains, Donald Crisp In Supporting Cast

"THE SEA HAWK," starring Errol Flynn in the most glorious screen adventure of his career, has been scheduled by the Paramount theater as the next feature attraction, and will open there today. In the stellar supporting cast are Brenda Marshall, Claude Rains, Donald Crisp, Flora Robson and Alan Hale.

Background of the stirring story of "The Sea Hawk" is England in the lusty days of Queen Elizabeth. Among England's heroes of the time are sea fighters, who prey on the Spanish galleons, stripping them of their rich booty and bringing it home to swell England's dwindling treasury. Most daring and fearless of these privateers is Geoffrey Thorpe, the role portrayed by Flynn.

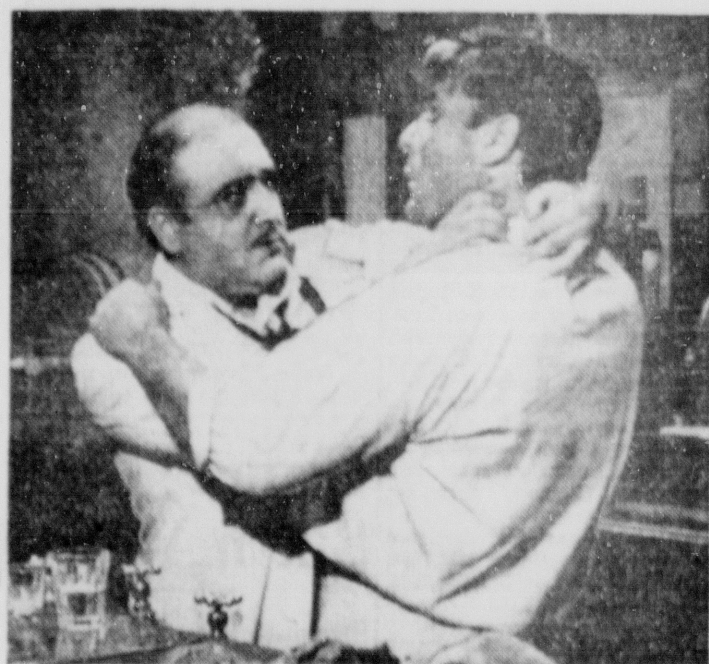

The fortunes of England are at a low ebb, however, and King Philip of Spain, aided by Elizabeth's traitorous chancellor, is planning to attack and seize the weakened country. To further his plans he sends one of his most able men to England as ambassador. Thorpe attacks the ship which is bringing the ambassador and his lovely niece Marie (Brenda Marshall) to England. Maria scorns Thorpe as a pirate and a thief until he returns her jewel casket to her, and also points out that the Spanish ship she was on was propelled by several hundred galley slaves, all Englishmen.

Exciting adventure on the thrill-swept Spanish Main with Errol Flynn as "The Sea Hawk," in which the swash-buckling doughty leads his lusty pirate crew in a daring hand-to-hand attack on one of the galleons of the Spanish Armada. With beautiful Brenda Marshall as the love-inducement, Errol Flynn takes you in swift pace from the very beginning, and leaves you breathless but satisfied in the end. It plays today, Monday and Tuesday at the Paramount Theater. The stars are ably supported by Donald Crisp, Flora Robson, Alan Hale, and Claude Rains.

Brian Donlevy holds the title of "The Great McGinty" in the new Paramount film by that name which plays Wednesday and Thursday at the Paramount theater. It depicts upon Donlevy to defend the diadem in a series of fascinating ups-and-downs. Here's one of down, administered by a small-time saloon-keeper. It's a knock-out.

Akin Tamiroff takes a turn at McGinty when that worthy for unworthy, depending on your viewpoint, tries to see the old. They engage in a feud that continues in saloons and salons of the great.

McGinty goes down before a bullet this time. Tamiroff, portraying a political boss, is maddened by McGinty's efforts to turn square. McGinty has become governor and refuses to be governed. As a result of this scrap, the two go to jail. McGinty on a trumped-up charge, and The Boss for assault.

And now it's a woman who flouts McGinty. Muriel Angelus, his bride of convenience, finds him falling for her when a ladies' knockdown him down. The blow sends McGinty—and there begins the proverbial downfall.

Gangland, beware! Meet the boys who deliver the big knock-out blow to gangsterdom in "Tear-Gas Squad," playing Tuesday at the Capitol, with Dennis Morgan, Gloria Dickson, and John Payne.

A raging round-up of robbers, and barking six-shooters, belching a verdict that lips dared not utter is Charles Starrett in "Blazing Six-Shooters," co-starring Iris Meredith and Sons of the Pioneers—Saturday only at the Capitol.

From that time on Maria and Thorpe are allies, bound together by mutual understanding as well as romantic inclination.

In secret conclave with the queen, Thorpe outlines a plan whereby he can salvage considerable gold from the Spaniards in Panama. Before Maria can warn him that the Spaniards have learned of his plans, Thorpe sets sail for Panama. There he falls into the hands of the Spaniards, and is impressed as a galley slave until he can be returned to Spain for trial by the Inquisition.

The dauntless sea hawk, however, still has a trick or two at his command. When the slave ship arrives in Cadiz, Thorpe steals a knife from one of the guards, frees himself and his men from their chains, and under cover of night, they daringly capture the "Madre Di Dios," and make a dash for the open sea. On the ship, Thorpe finds the documents he is looking for, which prove that Spain had planned to attack England.

Back in London, he has to fight his way through the traitorous chancellor's guard of henchmen before he can lay his document before the queen, but when he gets to her he is knighted for his great service to England.

Master director of the action film, Michael Curtiz has directed "The Sea Hawk" with the emphasis on robust adventure, stirring sea fights, and daring duels, interspersed with tender romantic interludes. With Flynn in the tailor-made role of the daring sea hawk, and a splendid supporting cast, "The Sea Hawk" is a glorious screen adventure that no one will want to miss thrilling to.

LAGUARDIA IN ANSWER TO PRYOR CRITICISM

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Mayor LaGuardia asserted today that "Republicans begged me on their knees to support Willie," before his speech Thursday night endorsing President Roosevelt.

"And Pryor knows that and so does Congressman Martin," he added, referring to Representative Joseph W. Martin Jr., Republican national chairman, and Samuel F. Pryor Jr., Republican Eastern campaign manager.

The mayor's remarks were prompted by Pryor's criticism of the speech, relayed to him as he boarded a plane for Buffalo, where he had a speaking engagement.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Secretary Perkins fined the Lane Cotton Mills Company, New Orleans, $42,167 today, after holding that the company had violated the Public Contracts Act.

The labor secretary's order, affirming a ruling of the public contracts administrator, said government contracts would be withheld from the firm for three years.

The company was charged with violating the overtime and child labor provisions of the act under 17 contracts with the army, navy and marine corps. Of the fine, $29,147 will be paid to him as he boarded a plane for Buffalo, where he had a speaking engagement.

The rest of the money will go to the treasury.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The 60 kiddies, all members of the Peter Merimblum Kiddies' Orchestra in Los Angeles, dropped their instruments on the long lawn in front of the music department and spent their waiting moments playing wood tag in and out the tall trees. But upon the return of each applicant, the game stopped abruptly and the youngsters, completely encircling the last applicant asked in one voice, "Did they tell you to come back?" which magic words meant that they were to be in the picture and a spirit of sheer unselfishness was displayed among the talented children, when a glad cry of "whoops" went up by those who had not been told to "come back."

The kiddies' band, which ranges in age from six to 14, frequently appears in pictures and has appeared at the Hollywood Bowl Easter Sunrise services, in local concerts, and more recently in a concert at the Los Angeles Hall of Records during Music Week.

In "Sing, Dance, Plenty Hot," which co-stars Ruth Terry and Johnny Downs, the 26 youngsters selected appear in a scene as an orphanage band, led by little Mary Lee, starlet of Gene Autry pictures, in a performance for charity. In the scene Mary sings the number, "Whatcha Gonna Do When There Ain't No Swing?" and the kids help swing it with gusto. The musical was produced by Robert North and directed by Lew Landers. A rollicking cast includes Billy Gilbert, Vera Vague, Elizabeth Risdon, Lester Matthews, Claire Carleton, and Cyril Thornton. Musical director was Cy Feuer.

DICK TRACY

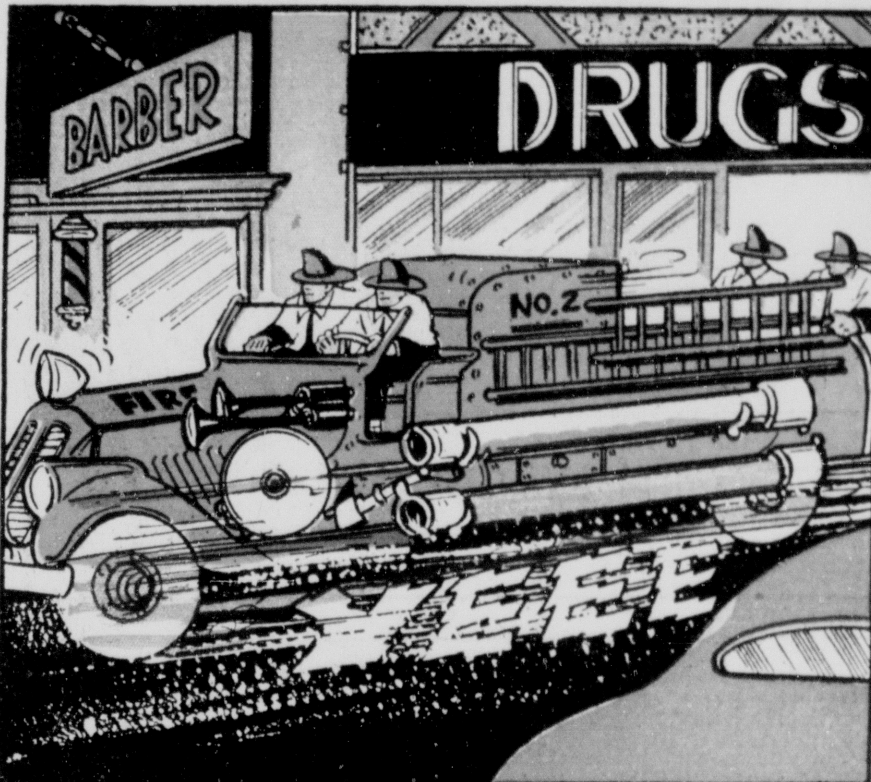

FOLLOWING THE MIRACULOUS RESCUE FROM THE WATER-FILLED SUBWAY, TRACY TAKES THE "PROFESSOR" TO A BARBER SHOP.

ONCE YOU GET THAT HAIR CUT OFF AND GET ON SOME CLEAN CLOTHES, YOU'LL BE A NEW MAN, PROFESSOR!

I READ ALL ABOUT YOUR NARROW ESCAPE IN THE PAPERS, MR. TRACY. BY THE WAY, HAS THAT YOGEE YAMMA BEEN CAUGHT?

NOT YET, JAKE!

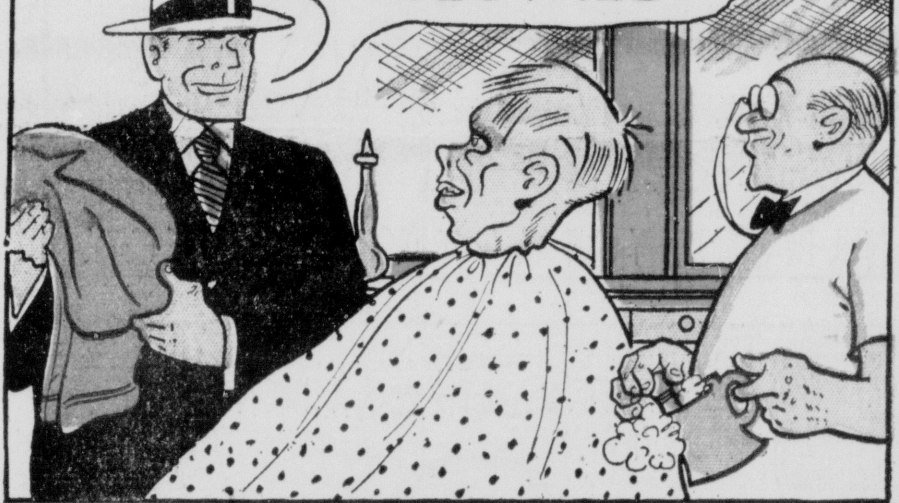

TAKE IT EASY, PROFESSOR! THAT'S ONLY A FIRE TRUCK!

MUST BE QUITE A FIRE DOWN THE STREET. THAT'S THE SECOND TRUCK THAT'S GONE BY!

SAY! YOU'RE LOOKING GOOD ALREADY! NOW GET HIM SHAVED, BARBER, SO HE CAN PUT ON THESE NEW CLOTHES.

AND DOWN THE STREET..

IT'S OKAY, JIM, WE'VE GOT HER UNDER CONTROL!

THIS IS OUR FIRST HOTEL FIRE IN THREE MONTHS. HOW DID IT START?

I DON'T KNOW, BUT YOU'D BETTER NOTIFY POLICE HEADQUARTERS! THE MAN WHO HAD THE ROOM THE FIRE STARTED IN IS DONE TO A CINDER!

YOU'RE THE BELL HOP WHO ATTENDED THIS MAN, EH? WHAT DO YOU KNOW?

THE MAN WAS--WELL--HE HAD SOME WINE. PERHAPS HE FELL ASLEEP WITH A LIGHTED CIGARETTE

THE HEAT MUST HAVE BEEN TERRIFIC!

HMM--HIS WATCH IS STILL HERE!

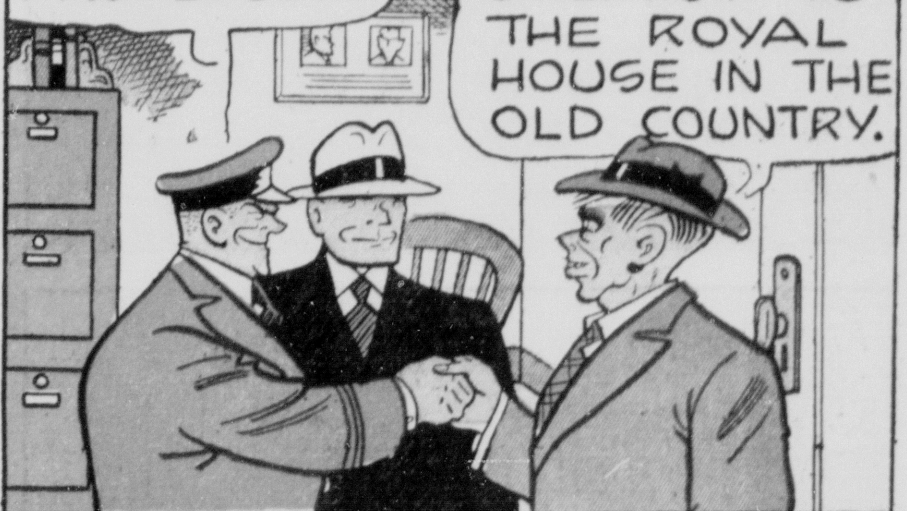

WATCH? HM?? THAT'S A FUNNY KIND OF A WATCH. IT HAS NO DIAL!

AND NOW AT HEADQUARTERS..

I'M GLAD TO KNOW YOU, PROFESSOR!

MY NAME IS ROLOC BARD. I WAS A CHEMIST TO THE ROYAL HOUSE IN THE OLD COUNTRY.

-SEP-15-

WHEN I DISCOVERED MY NERVE GAS, I CAME TO THIS COUNTRY, THINKING IT MIGHT BE OF SOME COMMERCIAL USE TO MANKIND, BUT I FELL INTO THE EVIL HANDS OF YOGEE YAMMA!

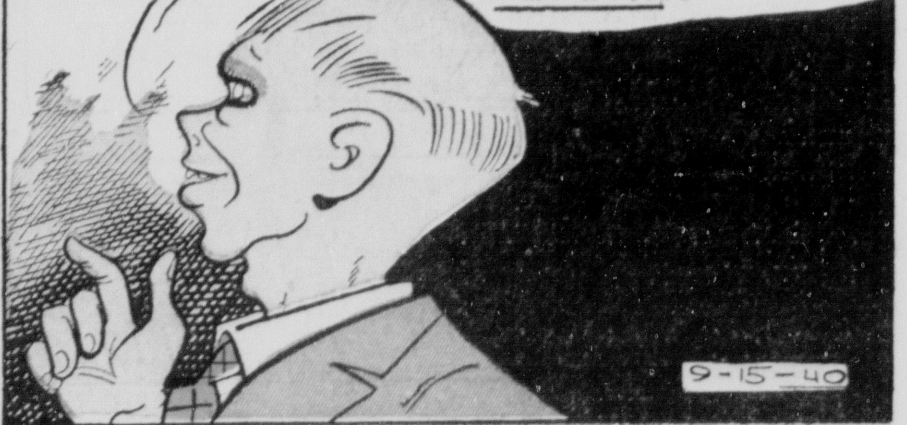

YOU FIGURED THE GAS WOULD BE OF USE TO THE MEDICAL PROFESSION IN ADMINISTERING CERTAIN TREATMENTS, EH?

THAT IS RIGHT!

WELL--YES AND NO. IT NEEDED SOME REFRIGERATION--AFTER PROLONGED EXPOSURE TO ROOM TEMPERATURE, IT WOULD BECOME INCENDIARY AND EXPLODE WITH A VIOLENT FLAME.

SECRET SIGNAL

SUDDENLY, FROM ABOVE, CAME AN URGENT WHISPER: "TARZAN--- TARZAN!"

"YOU CAN HIDE HERE," LEECIA URGED. "NO," TARZAN REFUSED. "IF THEY FOUND ME, YOU'D BE PUNISHED."

"YES, THEY'D KILL ME, BUT I'LL TAKE THE RISK---FOR YOU," THE GIRL ANSWERED SOFTLY.

TARZAN REFUSED. HE ASKED HER ONLY TO HIDE TANNY UNTIL HE COULD SPY OUT AN EXIT FROM THE HOSTILE CITY.

THE APE-MAN TOOK TO THE ROOFS, BUT EVERYWHERE HE WAS HANDICAPPED BY FISHING NETS HUNG OUT TO DRY.

AS HE DROPPED DOWN TO A DESERTED STREET, THE SOUND OF HIS PURSUERS MOVED OFF TO THE SOUTH.

TARZAN TURNED NORTH, NEVER SUSPECTING THAT THE SHIFT OF SOLDIERS' WAS A TRICK TO LURE HIM INTO A TRAP.

SOON THE APE-MAN CAME WITHIN SIGHT OF THE CITY WALL. YES, HE COULD SCALE IT EASILY.

HOGARTH—

BUT ON THE ROOF ABOVE A LOOKOUT WAS WATCHING HIM. SUDDENLY THE FELLOW RAISED A HAND IN A SECRET SIGNAL. NEXT WEEK: THE TRAP
